123 Lost In Wreck

Cross Channel Steamer Hilda Founders Off St. Malo Harbor.

Only Six Out of Passengers and Crew so Far Reported Saved.

Over Sixty Bodies Have Come Ashore—Pitiful Scenes at Southampton.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The London & Southwestern Railway Company received an official report from St. Malo, France, stating that the total number of persons aboard their steamer Hilda, which was wrecked off that place Saturday night, was 129, of whom only 6 haxe been saved. The bodies of 51 victims of the disaster have been washed up on the beach at St. Cast, near St. Malo. All of the crew of 26 belonged to Southampton, and only three of them were unmarried.

The Hilda left Southampton on Friday night for St. Malo, on the north coast of France. Her passage was greatly delayed by a fog in the channel, and when near St. Malo she ran into a severe snowstorm, apparently missing her course, and foundered on the rocks off Gardin lighthouse, three miles from St. Malo.

The company's steamer Ada, outward bound from St. Malo, rescued five of the passengers and one of the crew. The crew numbered 26 and there were about 100 passengers, all Frenchmen, the majority being onion dealers from St. Briac and neighborhood.

Wrecked Sunday Morning

A telegram from St. Servan, adjoining the town of St. Malo, gives the few particulars yet available. The Hilda was near St. Malo on Saturday morning, delayed by fog and bad weather. She struck the rocks at 4 o'clock on Sunday morning in the whom only 6 have been saved. The the crew and passengers were asleep at the time. Two boats were lowered, ond of which, containing five men, arrived at St. Servan. The second boat was picked up empty at St. Cast, where 10 bodies were washed ashore.

The top of the Hilda's funnel and her mast are visible at low tide, according to the telegram from St. Servan.

The Hilda was built at Glasgow in 1882, and registered 848 tons. She was a screw steamer of iron construction, and was 235 feet in length.

Sixty Bodies Recovered

Realization of the full extent of the disaster to the cross-channel steamer Hilda was borne in upon the people of St. Malo today as reports of the finding of bodies came in from different points on the nearby coast. In all over 60 bodies have been washed up, including that of Captain Gregory, the commander of the wrecked vessel, which now lies in the hospital here; and as fast as other bodies arrive they will be placed in a long room prepared for their reception.

Thirteen bodies of saloon passengers have been identified. These are: Mrs. Rook, her two children and their governess; Dr. Stanley his wife and two daughters and a maid; Major and Mrs. Price, Mr. Wellsley and Mr. Grindle.

The survivors are rapidly recovering.

Seaman Relates Experience

St. Malo, France, Nov. 20.—James Gunter, the only seaman saved of the L. & S. W. wrecked steamer Hilda, says there was no panic on board. Attempts were made to lower the boats, but rough seas rendered it impossible. Gunter clung to the fittings of the topmast, with nine others below him, including the chief mate and three Bretons, who died during the night of exposure. The Hilda first struck at 10 o'clock Sunday night. She was going dead slow at the time. Seven minutes later the ship broke amidships and her decks were swept bare with the exception of the few survivors who clung to the mast. They were rescued by a steamer after having endured twelve hours' agony.

Preparing for the End

In response to the captain's appeal, when he found it would be useless to attempt to launch the boats, all the women and children were mustered in the main hatch and the stewardesses fixed life belts around each of them. The French onion sellers assisting in the work. Everybody was very quiet. Gunter says there were about twenty persons on the rigging when vessel foundered. He describes pathetically how the men gradually dropped off, exhausted by the terrible cold, and says the roar of the elements was awful. As the men fell off, they ejaculated. "We have had enough of this. It does not matter how we die, good-bye."

A Difficult Channel

The entrance to the harbor of St. Malo is one of the most difficult known to mariners. On Saturday night a blinding snowstorm with haze and wind prevailed, and it is little wonder that even so experienced a navigator as Captain Gregory lost his reckoning, especially as at the point where the Hilda struck only a few yards deviation from the regular course meant destruction. Torpedo boats despatched to the scene of the wreck ascertained that there is no hope of salvaging the vessel.

Pitiful Scenes at Southampton

Southampton, Nov. 20.—All the members of the crew of the ill-fated Hilda were residents of this town, and most pitiful scenes were enacted throughout the day at the offices of the London & Southwestern Railway Company. The officials were unable to extend any hope to the relatives. Most of the men leave wives and children.

The steamer Ida, of the same line, which picked up the survivors, is expected to arrive tomorrow.

The mayor of Southampton has started a relief fund and is receiving a ready response to his appeal.

INJUNCTION DISSOLVED.

Typographical Union Wins Suit in Richmond.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 20.—Today in the chancery court, Judge Grinnan dissolved the injunction obtained several weeks ago by the Typothetae against the Typographical Union, and striking printers. The court says in the opinion that he does not find any evidence of an attempted boycott or of intimidation on the part of the striking employees.

IN MEMORIAM.

Services in New York in Memory of Sir Henry Irving.

New York, Nov. 20.—Two hundred persons — actors, clergymen and others—occupied the Manhattan Theatre yesterday at services in memory of Sir Henry Irving. The services were under the auspices of the Actors' Church Alliance. F. W. MacKay, director of the Dramatic School of Art, made the memorial address.

A Commission Of Enquiry

Asked For by School Trustees Into South Park School Affairs.

This Action Taken Yesterday In View of Latest Phase of Discussion.

A SPECIAL meeting of the board of school trustees was held in office of the board yesterday afternoon at five o'clock. The meeting which had been called by the chairman for business relative to the South Park principalship was a short one. There were but two topics suggested for discussion, the question of a successor to Miss Cameron and that of supplying the public with further information in regard to the reason for dispensing with the present principal's services.

The consideration of an appointment was postponed for a meeting to be called at an early date by the chairman. The latter was disposed of with very little discussion by the adoption of the following resolutions made by president Jay, seconded by Trustee Mowat.

Whereas, the board on the 13th instant adopted a resolution dispensing with the services of Miss Cameron, principal of the South Park school, as from the 15th of December next, assigning as a reason for such action her neglect to surrender on the order of the board the pupils' affidavits secured by her, and

Whereas, this disobedience of the order of the board did not constitute the only offence on the part of Miss Cameron, in consideration of which the board decided to dispence with her services; though it was not considered necessary that such additional reasons for the board's action should be embodied in the letter of dismissal; and

Whereas, the board is of the opinion that the public should now be more fully advised of the facts which were regarded by the board as furnishing sufficient ground for Miss Cameron's dismissal; and further, that these facts would be accepted by the public as conclusive, if presented in the form of a judicial finding based on sworn testimony; it is therefore

Resolved, that application be made to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor in Council for the appointment, under the provisions of the Public Inquiries Act, of a commission, whose duty it shall be to inquire into all the facts connected with the award of the department of education upon the drawing books presented at the High school entrance examination, June, 1905, by pupils of the South Park school, and into the subsequent acts of the department, the board of school trustees, and Miss Cameron in relation thereto, and further

Resolved that pending the decision of His Honor in regard to such application, the newspapers of the city be respectfully requested to republish the report of the board adopted at the meeting held on the 8th instant, as well as Miss Cameron's letter to the Colonist newspaper published in the issue of the 11th instant., and her letter to the board dated 12th instant.

Trustee Jay in introducing his motion said, it would seem from the newspaper correspondence of the past few days that there was a good deal of misunderstanding as to the merits of the case. It was therefore due alike to the public and to the board itself that a fuller statement of the facts should be made. He believed that in the manner contemplated in the resolutions the most satisfactory result could be arrived at.

Trustee Mowat in seconding the motion, said that he did so most heartily, and he was quite prepared as trustee to stand or fall by the finding of the commission. Mrs. Jenkins and Dr. Hall also cordially endorsed the resolution though the latter took occasion to say that though he had been unable to be

Formal Offer Of Throne

Norwegian Delegation Makes an Tender of Crown to Danish Prince.

On Behalf of His Grandson King Christian Accepts the Throne.

King Haakon and Queen Maud Receive Rousing Reception on the Streets.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 20.—The throne of Norway was formally tendered to Prince Charles of Denmark today by a deputation of members of the Norwegian parliament and was accepted by King Christian in behalf of his grandson. The brief historic ceremony in the palace recalled the similar event in 1863, when the throne of Greece was presented to Prince George of Denmark. The whole function lasted only twenty minutes, but the scene was brilliant, as it was attended by all the princes and princesses and their suites, the diplomatic corps and high court officials. President Bernier, in a brief speech, invited Prince Charles to become King of Norway, and King Christian with similar brevity accepted the offer. The old King was much affected as he blessed and embraced his grandchildren, King Haakon and Queen Maud. The close of the ceremony was signalled by the firing of a royal salute. An enormous crowd gathered in front of the palace and gave a rousing reception to the new King and Queen of Norway as they left the palace in a state chariot.

King Christian's Address

King Christian read the speech of acceptance, which was as follows: "It has pleased us to accede to the desire of the Norwegian people that we accept the ancient crown of Norway for our dear grandson, Prince Charles. We cherish full confidence that the Norwegian people, in common with us, have a happy future in store for them. The young King does not come as a stranger to Norway, for he claims relationship to former Norwegian kings. Nor will the kingdom of Norway be strange for him, for everywhere in the land common recollections of the history of the kingdom and the history of his race will meet him.

"It is out hope that the ties which have ever united the young king to the old land and the people may be more firmly knit by the co-operation of the King and the people for the welfare of the land and its future, and it is our belief that thereby not only will the welfare of the Norwegian people be furthered but also the welfare of their kinsmen.

"We pray the Almighty God that this step may bring happiness and blessing to the whole north and that unity, peace and concord may increase between the two nations. We are confident that our whole house and the Danish people share this wish.

"With this I commend you to God and beg you to convey our hearty greetings to the Norwegian people, which you here represent."

Valedictory to His Grandson

Turning to the young King, King Christian said: "To you, my dear grandchildren I address myself with the hope that God may lend you power and strength to serve your country and people with righteousness. In this way you will win for yourselves the love of your people and will feel yourselves Norwegians in your work for the happiness and future of your country.

"You, my dear grandson, have served your fatherland and King with loyalty. Therefore, I am convinced that you will enter upon your new responsible task with good intent. Fill worthily your place and your father and mother, your whole race, the land of the Danish people, and I, your old King and grandfather, will all celebrate this solemn hour with warm feelings.

"Go with God, my dear grandchildren, from the land and race that bore you to the land and people which have called you, and take the blessing with you of your old King for your race and your deeds now and forever. Herewith I

King Haakon's Gratitude

At a banquet held in the palace tonight King Christian proposed a toast to the Norwegian people and their new sovereign, to which King Haakon replied as follows: "In this moment, which is so serious to me, it is difficult to express my gratitude for Your Majesty's kind expressions toward my consort and to myself. The illuminating example set by my beloved grandfather as a King and a man will always, in my future responsible vocation, stand before me, and I shall strive to emulate it. It is my heartiest wish that God will give me strength and ability to create the same relations of confidence between the Norwegian people and myself as exist between Your Majesty and the Danish people."

King Christian tonight issued a letter formally announcing the acceptance by Price Charles of the Norwegian throne.

Satisfaction in Christiania

Christiania, Nov. 20.—The news of today's events at Copenhagen was eagerly read here tonight, and the greatest enthusiasm was displayed. King Haakon's simple cordiality and unceremonious behavior are accepted as an omen that he will prove to be a King after the Norwegian heart. His assumption of the name Haakon VII for himself and of Olaf for his son, a reminder of the glorious centuries of Norwegian history, has made an excellent impression.

In reply to a congratulatory telegram sent by the Norwegian government, King Edward wired: "I thank you for your kind telegram. I am enchanted to learn that my dear daughter will be Queen of your magnificent and interesting country."

NUTTING ACCIDENT.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Nov. 20.—While nutting yesterday Thomas Wood, aged 11 years, was struck on the head by a stone which had been thrown into a tree. His skull was fractured and he died in a hospital here.

ERIE TRAIN WRECKED.

Doubleheaded Express Ditched While Making Up Lost Time.

Jamestown, N. Y., Nov. 20—The eastbound Atlantic express on the Erie Railway was wrecked at Falconer, three miles east of here, a few minutes before 6 o'clock tonight. Two trainmen were killed. The passengers escaped with a severe shaking up. The train was about two hours late when it left Jamestown and was being drawn by two engines in charge of Engineers Kreiger and See. At Falconer both engines and four coaches left the track. The engines tipped over, burying the engineers. The cause of the derailment is being investigated.

Y. M. C. A. IN NORTH.

The Association Will Enter the Arctic Circle Next Season.

New York, Nov. 20.—The Y. M. C. A., it is announced today, is to enter the Arctic circle on the opening of navigation in the spring. An army secretary is to be sent up the Yukon with a launch to visit the six posts. He will supply soldiers with reading matter and stationery, give entertainments, conduct religious services and organize army associations. William A. Reid, who was for two years an army secretary in Alaska, where he did a similar service, traveling on dog-sleighs, on snowshoes and by canoes, from post to post, is the man chosen for the service. He will extend his services to the Canadian mounted police.

DOCTRINE OF DAMNATION.

Dr. Parkhurst Does Not Believe in Any Half Measure.

New York, Nov. 20.—Rev. Dr. Parkhurst in the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church last night told his congregation he believed in damnation. "The apparent cruelties attributed to God," he said, "are not a circumstance to the cruelty in nature.

"Natural laws pay no more attention to man than a dog. Saints as well as sinners were burned in the Windsor Hotel fire and in the Slocum disaster. If God burns up a body He will burn up a soul that gets in the way of His moral laws.

"The God of Love in 1785 destroyed 50,000 persons in the Lisbon earthquake. He does not amend physical laws to save saints.

"If a man will not accept God's moral law, then I say that God will damn him, and I further say that God should damn him."

Pacific Coast Happenings

The Alaskan Conference Reiterates Claims to Territorial Government.

Japanese Representative Spends Season Studying Fish Curing.

SEATTLE, Nov. 20.—After being buffeted by gales for 21 days, during which time she was blown several hundred miles off shore, the bark J. D. Peters, Captain N. C. McNaught, reached port Sunday afternoon from San Francisco. At one time she was on her beam ends and in danger of capsizing.

The keynote throughout the memorial to the President adopted today by the Alaska convention, calling for government aid, was territorial government. A warm fight developed over the resolutions. One clause adopted favors the abolition of power of attorney by which a man can stake out virtually an entire creek. Another favors making it possible for one man to stake out only two claims on any creek or its tributaries. It looks as if the idea of three delegates to congress would prevail, with A. P. Swineford to be chosen from Ketchikan, Dick Ryan of Nome and Carl M. Johnson of Tanana.

Studying Fish Curing

Anacortes, Nov. 20.—After spending the spring and summer codfishing with the schooner Fannie Colby in Behring Sea, and working for some time past in Matheson's codfish plant here, M. Koganemaru, a representative of the Japanese government, will leave in a few days for Vancouver, B. C., to go out in the employ of the New England Fish Company. M. Koganemaru was sent here to familiarize himself with the methods of securing and curing the various species of fish native to the waters of this country. He arrived in Vancouver last February and has devoted his entire time to learning the methods of catching and curing fish.

Barkentine Ashore

Los Angeles, Nov. 20.—The barkentine Katie Flickinger of San Francisco was driven ashore at Redondo this morning by a southwest gale. The vessel dragged anchor and went on the beach, where she lies and is firmly embedded. It is not thought she is badly damaged, but the work of getting her off will be difficult.

Prospectors' Sad Fate

In a letter received yesterday by S. George Knox, the fate of Henry Miller and Gus Olinder, who went on an expedition to Tiburon Island, in the Gulf of Mexico, nearly a year ago, is probably disclosed. On the desolate shores of the Gulf of California near a deserted Indian village a herder found the trappings of Miller and Olinder, a book of nautical science which belonged to Olinder and a pair of human hands which may have been those of one of the men. A few feet away was found the charred remains of a huge feast fire and circles of an Indian war dance. It is believed the men were slain by hostile Indians who inhabit that portion of Lower California. The discovery of the relics of the Miller-Olinder party was made in connection with the search now conducted by Prof. E. P. Grindall of Arizona for his brother, Lieut. Grindall, who was lost on the peninsula.

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—Writs have been issued for the Saswatchewan elections to be held on December 3rd.

Immigration returns for October show that arrivals from United States were 3,042 compared with 2,290 for the same period last year. Continental returns give 5,346 which is 362 less than for October, 1904. There was decrease of 340 from Britain compared with October last year.

Reports received at the office of the new transcontinental railway point to substantial progress being made on the work of survey. About fifty parties are engaged at present and operations are being pushed as rapidly as possible. In Quebec and Ontario, however, many difficulties are being encountered and transportation of supplies is not an easy matter.

Today is Sir Wilfrid Laurier's birthday. He is 64 years of age, having been born at St. Lin Que. Nov. 20, 1841. A large number of friends called on Sir Wilfrid to congratulate him and numerous others sent their felicitation by wire and letter.

Military Instruction School

All the provinces have agreed to attend a conference at Ottawa to take up the military instruction school as proposed by the minister of militia.

E. C. Garde, secretary of the zinc commission, British Columbia, is here. He says the work of the commission is showing encouraging results. Tests are being made in Denver, Colorado. Mr. Garde is here seeing Dr. Haanel.

Senator Domville will move next session for an investigation of the insurance business.

The act disallowed by the government is the British Columbia act ordering that judges named for British Columbia should reside within the province for a certain number of years. The federal authorities consider that the British Columbia legislature was invading the rights of the Dominion parliament.

Charged With Manslaughter

Montreal, Nov. 20.—Samuel Tenny, agent at Dorval station, on the C. P. R., has been charged with manslaughter by the coroner's jury in connection with the death of Engineer Daniel West, whose engine collided with a light engine at that station last Tuesday. Tenny failed to protect the light engine, which was standing on the main line. He failed to put up the east end semaphore.

W. C. Annabele, of the passenger department of the C. P. R., has been promoted to general baggage agent in place of the late R. H. Morris.

Russia Asks Returning Prisoners Be Convoyed by Japanese Warships.

Tokio, Nov. 20.—It is reported here that Russia, apprehending a mutiny of prisoners on board the transports conveying them from Japan, asked the Japanese government to convey them with warships to Vladivostok, but that the Japanese declined to do so. Strong enmity by the members of the army and navy on the vessels is said to exist. Admiral Rojestvensky is reported to be keeping in his cabin on the Boronji. Admiral Danaloff, who came here to arrange for the transfer of the prisoners, has departed in haste for Nagasaki.

THE DIVINE SARAH.

Bernhardt's Perennial Farewell Tour Commences at Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Mme. Sarah Bernhardt tonight appeared at the Grand Opera house in "La Sorciere," to begin her farewell tour of America, and she was greeted by an audience made up of Chicago's most representative citizens, who showed their appreciation of the work of the great actress at every opportunity. All seats were sold early, while hundreds of persons were standing in line and offering premiums to obtain seats. Although suffering fatigue, Mme. Bernhardt gave a representation that won unstinted praise.

LONDON POVERTY PARTY.

Nearly Six Thousand Unemployed Demand Work, Not Charity.

London, Nov. 20.—There was another "poverty party" in the streets of London today. Five or six thousand unemployed men and a sprinkling of women marched along the Thames embankment to Hyde Park, where they listened to speeches and adopted resolutions condemning charity as a cure for lack of employment and demanding the summoning of parliament to initiate works of national utility. Red flags were seen and banners bearing such devices as "Curse Your Charity," "We Want Work," and "There is a Limit to Human Endurance," indicated the temper of the processionists. The march, however, was quite orderly and the strong force of police on duty had little to do.

BACKING AND FILLING.

Contradictory Action of Federation of Labor as to Granting Charter.

Pittsburg, Nov. 20.—After a wordy battle lasting five hours at the convention of the American Federation of Labor today, the International Association of Steamfitters, composed of members of that trade exclusively, was practically voted a charter independent of the Plumber's Union, which for the three years has fought bitterly every effort to this end. The vote was nearly two to one in favor of granting the charter, and while it merely approves the recommendation of the committee on resolutions that the executive council issue a charter to this organization it is believed the council will not go against the opinion of the convention as a whole.

The steam-fitters dispute again came up in the afternoon's session, when President Gompers gave his decision on a point of order raised by John Mitchell at the morning session. Section one of article 12 of the constitution was quoted, which provides that the president with the consent of the executive council, has the right to issue charters and ruled that the point of Mr. Mitchell was well taken. This ruling bars the national association of steamfitters from admission to the federation. A long debate followed, the chair finally being upheld by a vote of 180 to 5.

PLOTTING IN CUBA.

Discovery of Secret Store of Arms Leads to Other Revelations.

Havana, Nov. 20.—Information obtained by the commission, which is investigating the discovery Saturday last of the hiding place of arms, ammunition and accoutrements in a house in the Cerro suburb is tending to implicate a few men of prominence. The government has no doubt that the material came from the United States, and it is now seeking to learn who were the purchasers.

Government officials now admit that they have received various secret advices concerning contemplated uprisings before election day, particularly in the provinces of Santiago, Santa Clara and Pinar Del Rio with a probable attack on the palace in Havanna. The object of the later, according to these officials appears to favor the removal possibly by

Assassination of President Palma

The plotter, it is pointed out, are well aware since there is no vice president that the election of President Palma's successor would, according to the constitution be in the hands of congress and that the liberals with the help of a few independents could control both houses.

Special measures have been taken for guarding the palace.

The fact that the president, with his family are remaining at home and that troops are being sent to points where, according to reports, the plotting originates, are considered significant. So far as known, however, these plots are not backed by any large party.

The generally accepted theory is that these rumors of plots are intended by his opponents to imbue President Palma with the idea of resigning and that there are no plots to do him injury.

CHURCH FEDERATION.

Conference Amends Constitution So as to Shut Out Unitarians.

New York, Nov. 20.—At its meeting today the inter-church conference on federation changed the wording of the phrase "Jesus Christ our Lord and Savior" in the preamble of the constitution of the federal council to read "Jesus Christ our Divine Lord and Savior." It is understood that this change will exclude the Unitarians from membership in the federal council on the ground that they do not accept the theory of the divinity of Jesus Christ. This body was not invited to attend the conference on federation.

An amendment to allow other churches to join the federal council, which was proposed by Prof. James Denley, professor of social and political science at Brown university, was laid on the table. Prof. Dealey is the head of the Rhode Island federation of churches and Christian workers, a body which includes both Universalists and Unitarians.

With the exception of the amendment to insert the word "divine" in the preamble before the words "Lord and Savior," the articles of federation were and proposed last week. There was, however, a long discussion on the article, which gives to the federal council the power of passing on the admission of local councils to the general body.

A letter thanking the conference for its condemnation of the Jewish massacres in Russia was read from Rev. H. P. Mendez, president of the Union orthodox Jewish congregations of the United States and Canada.

Prof. Dealey's amendments broadening the scope of the federation and providing for the admission of religious denominations not now members was voted on and defeated.

Collapse of Demonstration in Russia Leads to New Movement.

Propaganda Among Soldiers and Sailors Will Now Be Punished.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 20.—With the collapse of the strike, the leaders of the "Reds" say they will now devote their energy to the preparation of a universal political strike, to sustain the revolutionary programme when the national assembly meets. These plans, which were suddenly upset by the precipitation of the railroad strike last month, are exceedingly ambitious, not only of the workmen of the city, but the peasantry, and, if possible, the army and navy. The propaganda among the soldiers and sailors will be pushed energetically. The leaders claim that they have organized the peasantry in five districts of Kharkoff province, the peasants having agreed not to work when the strike is called. They anticipate that famine is at the doors of 15,000,000 peasants of the provinces, according to estimates.

Poles' Manifesto to Russians

The delegation of 24 prominent Poles who came here to plead the cause of Poland issued a manifesto today to the Russian people, reviewing the sad history of Poland in the century and declaring that the Poles have no thought of separation of independence and asking the support of all parties in Russia. The manifesto firmly declares that the normal and peaceful existence of Poland will only be made possible by the granting of autonomy, permission to use the Polish language in the schools and in the courts and by the local administration and the entrusting of the Poles with the government of the kingdom. It is insisted that the country is and that the acts of violence which formed the pretext for the imposition of martial law were not the acts of the Polish people as a whole, but of the same revolutionary elements which were long found throughout all Russia. Count Craszinsky the leader of the delegation declared tonight not only that all the Polish parties recognized that the restoration of Polish independence was a dream impossible of realization but that economic future of the country was bound up with Russia and that if given autonomy and freedom of the domination of Russian administrators would be willing to become faithful Russian subjects.

Not in a State of Revolution

Normal conditions of life are being resumed here. The workmen are returning to work, the electric light plants are in operation and telephonic communication has been restored. The newspapers re-appeared this morning.

Party of Law and Order

Moscow, Nov. 20.—The zemstvo congress today donated two long sessions to the discussion of the question of the attitute it should adopt towards the new government and later tonight adjourned without coming to a decision. The debate indicted quite clearly however the existence of two apparent irreconcilable parties as well as the lines on which the division will be made. Orators participated in the debate and they were divided among the delegates.

Prominent among the speakers for the conservatives were M. Krasoffsky, president of the St. Petersburg municipal council and others who will from the nucleus around which will rally the members of the "party of law and order," the peace party and others who are in favor of coming to the support of Count Witte if sufficient guarantees be given for the fulfillment of the liberties promised.

Situation Disquieting

Odessa, Nov. 20.—The situation here is again disquieting. A renewal of the disorders is threatened by the so-called Socialist element, and there are rumors of a mutinous spirit among the troops. The members of the British Colony conferred with their consul and arranged at the first sign of a disorder to assemble at the consulate and demand a guard of soldiers. If this refused they will go on board British vessels in the harbor. The British consul today applied for a collective passport for the entire British colony. The American, Austrian and Italian consuls propose to take the same measures.

Warsaw, Nov. 21.—The temporary governors who have been appointed in the ten provinces of Poland today issued manifestoes threatening with severe punishment those who issue sedition manifestoes taking part in seditious gatherings, carrying concealed weapons or ask the Russian officials to speak the Polish language.

KILLED NEAR FIELD.

Member of Survey Party Falls Over Cliff—Navigation Closed at Golden.

Golden, Nov. 20.—Two or three days ago, while a party of civil engineers were working on the mountains near Field, one of their number, a man named Mitchell, fell over a cliff and was instantly killed. A rock falling after him, having struck him on the back inflicting fatal injuries.

Navigation has closed on the Columbia, owing to low water. No ice has formed on the rivers yet although there were a few days' skating on Phantom lake, two weeks ago. Since then it has been mild and snow is falling today.

The Electric Light Company expect to have their station complete and lights turned on in about ten days.

GRANBY BUYS MACHINERY.

Will Have a New 250 Horse Power Electric Hoist.

Phoenix, B. C., Nov. 20.—The Granby Consolidated has placed an order for a double conical drum electric hoist of 250 horse-power. According to the contract the hoist is to be shipped in three months and will be the largest of its kind in this section. This order is in addition to that placed last week, which included a Blake-Farrell 32x42 ore crusher, a duplicate of the two crushers now in use at the company's mines, and a 250 horse-power variable speed Westinghouse electric motor to drive the hoist.

ORIENTAL LIMITED STARTS.

Great Northern's New Train Service Inaugurated at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Nov. 20.—The Oriental Limited, the Great Northern's new transcontinental train, started on its first trip west at 10:30 this morning, the inauguration of the service being celebrated by a reception at the Union depot and a christening ceremony, at which General Passenger Agent C. E. Stone broke the champagne bottle. The Oriental limited consists of eight cars, all of which are models of their kind. One of the distinct features is the new compartment observation cars,

The First Cars of the Kind to be used in regular transcontinental service. The rooms are finished in mahogany, cocoa and vermillion, with furnishings in olive, rose, green and maroon plush. The card room is finished in English oak, with green leather seat coverings. There is a handsome drawing room finished in mahogany and golden brown finishings.

The observation end of the car is in keeping with the splendor of the rest, and has excellent appointments.

The train will be the advance guard of seven similar trains that will leave for the coast during the seven days following. It takes eight trains to maintain the Oriental limited service, which means that the Great Northern in installing the new equipment has expended $864,000 in its passenger department.

WAS CURED OF ASTHMA.

"I first used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine with my daughter who suffered from a severe form of asthma. The least exposure to cold would lay her up and she would nearly suffocate for want of breath. I must say I found it to be a most satisfactory treatment and it has entirely cured her."—Mrs. A. A. DEVELOPMENT OF CARIBOO GRAVELS

Deal Pending for Acquirement Well Known Hydraulics Near Barkerville.

A deal is pending for the transfer of two well known hydraulics near Barkerville, says the Ashcroft Journal. The Mucho Oro, on Stouts Gulch, owned by W. C. Fry, and the Forest Rose, on Forest Rose Gulch, owned by James Innes and W. C. Fry. These gentlemen are now in Vancouver arranging terms with the intending purchasers. The amount involved is said to be $55,000. The Stouts Gulch property averaged 40 cents per cubic yard this year.

Manager Muller has found the Willow River channel to be 11 feet deeper than the present workings. The gravel shaft will now be sunk 25 feet deeper and the channel opened from that level. As this will involve a heavy outlay it is believed that a favorable prospect was found in the blind shaft by which the depth of the channel was determined.

It is rumored that the Slough Creek Gravel Gold, Limited, will sink a gravel shaft for the double purpose of draining the channel more rapidly and as a working shaft when the ground is sufficiently drained.

Lasell, Wendle and Hanaeur have greatly enlarged the capacity of the Bear hydraulic on Cunningham Creek by large ditches from Cunningham and Antler creeks. The mine has been opened several hundred feet down stream from the first cut by a seven-foot flume on a three-inch grade. Next season a large reservoir will be made in Cunningham Pass to conserve the Antler Creek piping water and a wire rope cableway operated by an impact wheel will be installed to dispose of the rocks. As this ground has been well prospected, its extensive development under competent management promises to result in a really great mine.

The China Creek hydraulic, also operated by Lasell, Wendle and Hanaeur, has had a successful season. This property has been considerably improved by repairs and extensions to ditches and the completion of a dam, making a reservoir that will insure a much longer working season than is otherwise possible. The face of the bank is now about 60 feet and the yield continues up to the average of past years.

The United Company's drifting claim managed by Lasell and Wendle, the principal owners, is not at present being worked. Development has been carried on all summer and will be resumed again probably in a month or two. The bedrock has been found to break off very suddenly. When it is recovered again they intend, if gold is found, to work the gravel from a shaft, as it will be impossible to work it by the present drift. The shaft would probably be not over 50 feet.

The cyanide test of quartz which B. Lasell had made last summer gave very gratifying results. Ninety-two per cent. was saved, proving the extraction by this method to be right. The ore is low-grade, but it can be made a paying proposition if on development there is found to be a large body of it.

F. A. Burgess, local manager for the Thistle Gold Company, Barkerville, left for his Minneapolis home last week. He reports a good season, considering the water supply, with an average yield per working day equal to that of last year.

The directors of the Cariboo Consolidated have called on extraordinary general meeting for the purpose of submitting resolutions in favor of increasing the capital to £220,000 by the issue of 200,000 preference shares of 2's each. Further information in regard to this will appear in the Journal next week.

FIT BOYS FOR COLONIAL LIFE.

Scheme to Train Young Men to Maintain World's Peace.

London, Nov. 18.—"If by any means this scheme is given strength it will be little short of a revolution in the secondary education of this country," said Sir William White, K. C. B., speaking of the colonial educational scheme recently.

"The aim of the scheme is to educate the boys in such a way as to make them self-reliant and to fit them for a colonial life. This is to be done by the imperial service college trust, Harpenden, incorporated, with the United Service college of Westward Ho."

"It is a popular edition of the Cecil Rhodes scheme," said Sir John Cockburn; "let us train our sons to arms, not only to defend the empire, but to maintain the peace of the world."

CRONJE RETURNS TO FARM.

Reconciled to New Condition of Affairs—Reconciliation Will Take Time

London, Nov. 20.—General Cronje, who surrendered to Lord Roberts at Paardeberg and was afterward confined at St. Helena, has just sailed from Southampton for South Africa, accompanied by his wife and two sons. The general has been in America, where he conducted a military exhibition. The exhibition presented the scene at Paardeberg, and included the surrender of Cronje and his force to Lord Roberts.

He intends to return to Pochefstrom and settle down on his farm and spend the remainder of his days quietly and peacefully. He is quite Reconciled to the New Conodition.. .. of affairs in South Africa, but thinks it will be some years before a complete reconciliation takes place between the Briton and the Boer.

One of Cronje's sons said that they had met many Boer irreconcilables in the United States who would prefer to return to South Africa under British rule rather than to remain in America.

Letters received from Boers in the Transvaal, General Cronje says, have informed him that affairs there are in a state of chaos, but eventually, his correspondents thought, matters would be settled. It was interesting to hear that General Cronje had a high opinion of General Buller as a soldier, and also spoke highly of Lord Roberts, but he had not the same regard for Lord Kitchener.

"The King's Scapegoat" is a historical tale dealing with France in the reign of Louis XI. Although the story is fascinating in its way, the chief interest in the book comes from its portrayal of the character of the king and the state of affairs in general in that country at that time. Gaspard Hellewyl, a young Flemish nobleman, loses all his estates, and finally his house is burnt by an outlaw. Going to France, he takes service under Louis de Valois, and is sent on a mission to steal the young Prince of Navarre. It is this peculiar mission that proves so interesting, although the final race for a lover's life is not a wholly new theme.

SERIOUS LIVER TROUBLE CURED BY PE-RU-NA.

CATARRH WILL ATTACK ANY ORGAN.

Many Disagreeable Symptoms Can Be Traced to Catarrh of the Liver.

WHEN catarrh once fastens itself upon the human system, it is liable to invade any organ.

It usually begins in the head, and, if neglected, spreads downward to other parts of the body.

From the head it spreads to the throat, from the throat to the stomach, from the stomach to the liver or kidneys, and later to the bowels and other pelvic organs.

When catarrh attacks the liver, it produces a sluggishness of this organ which is very annoying and frequently the source of many ailments.

The catarrhal inflammation thickens the mucous membranes and thus clogs up the ducts which carry the bile from the liver to the duodenum.

The bile accumulates in the gall bladder and liver.

It is then reabsorbed into the blood, producing bilious headaches, general lassitude, irregular appetite, sallow skin, skin eruptions, and, if allowed to continue, jaundice.

Peruna, by removing the catarrhal conditions, promptly mitigates all of these disagreeable symptoms.

The functions of the various organs are restored to their natural activities, the impurities are excreted, and the health restored.

MR. J. E. LACOMBE.

Mr. J. E. Lacombe, 1013 Chaussi, Montreal, Can., writes:

"I suffered for a long time with liver trouble and after having used several remedies without good results, I resolved to try Peruna.

"After a comparatively short treatment, I am completely cured."

HAPPENINGS IN POLICE CIRCLES

Insane Chinese Died From Natural Causes--Search For Missing Victorian.

An inquest was held yesterday into the circumstances connected with the death of Ah Gooey, the insane Chinese, who died at the lock-up on Saturday night. Several witnesses were examined by the coroner, Dr. Hart, and the jury brought in a verdict that deceased had died of acute alcoholism. The deceased Chinese was the caretaker or nurse at the Chinese hospital. Dr. Robertson gave evidence of having performed an autopsy to ascertain the cause of death which he found to be alcoholism. Jailer Handley testified that deceased had been violent when brought to the lock-up at midnight Thursday. Papers for his commitment to the asylum had been signed on Saturday evening, and the jailer went in to see the prisoner, who had been muttering to himself when visited in his cell a few minutes before. At 9:50 when the jailer reentered the cell the Chinese was dead.

Constable Andrew Woods gave evidence of how he, Sergeant Redgrave and Constable Best had gone to investigate cries of "murder" heard from the roof of the Victoria hotel. They had climbed the fire escape and when Constable Best, who was first on the roof, had located the Chinese he was hanging over the edge of the roof, shouting wildly that some pursuers intended to murder him. The Chinese was violent and the officers got him from the roof by way of the fire escape with difficulty.

The secretary of the hospital, who identified the deceased, was quite bland. The coroner, Dr. Hart, asked him how he wished to be sworn, by burning his name on a paper or other method. The witness was indifferent. "How you like," he said; "book all right." He said the deceased had been drinking heavily within the past week or two.

The jury then found that Ah Gooey had died from natural causes.

Chief of Police John M. Langley is sending a large number of circulars to the chiefs of police of many cities seeking to locate a missing Victorian, Walter Frederick Askew. Askew was last seen in Seattle on May 12, 1903 and the trustees of the estate of his mother, who died on October 12, of this year are very anxious to locate the missing man in order to make division of the estate among the survivors. George Askew, foreman of the carpenters of the White Pass and Yukon route, who recently returned from the north, is a brother of the missing man.

The solution of the problem "What is a street crossing?" is expected to be solved today when Magistrate Hall will probably give his decision in the case of Marsden, a hackman, charged with blocking a street crossing in contravention of the streets by-laws. Marsden had his hack standing at the edge of the cement walk on the line between the end on the north side and the end on the south side and Constable Woods ordered him to move. He refused and was summoned. Mr. Moresby, who is defending him, contends that the former crossing, built of wooden blocks running diagonally, which was made before the cement walks were laid on the street, is the crossing while the police hold the line between the ends of the pavement is the crossing.

LEGAL INTELLIGENCE.

20th November, 1905.

(Before His Honor Judge Lampman.)

Cameron & Calwell vs. Evans & Carlvolth. This was an application to sell defendant's (Evans) interest in the partnership firm of Evans & Carlvolth. Carlvolth opposed the application on the ground that it would jeopardize his interest in the business if Evans' interests were sold.

His Honour ordered Evans' interest to be sold to satisfy the judgment and costs obtained by the plaintiff against the defendant Evans. Two weeks' notice of sale is to be published in the daily papers by the receiver. Mr. Frank Higgins, for the plaintiffs; Mr. H. Dallas Helmcken, K. C. and Mr. Frederick Peters, K. C., for the defendants.

The Victoria Printing & Publishing Company vs. Finch. In this matter, which was an adjourned hearing of the case, further evidence was taken as to the pro rata cost of the production of a fourteen page paper on the same basis of getting out the regular issue of the week which was an eight page paper.

After hearing the evidence of Mr. T. B. McCabe, superintendent of the Colonist Printing & Publishing Company, on behalf of the plaintiff, and of Mr. T. R. Cusack on behalf of the defendant, His Honour came to the conclusion that the plaintiff was entitled to judgment for $114 and costs.

The amount sued for was $189, being balance of account which was admitted, but the defendant claimed he had been overcharged in the getting out of a special edition of the Week.

Mr. W. C. Moresby, for the plaintiff; Mr. R. T. Elliott, for the defendant.

ARTISTIC TIME.

The growth of the watch industry is one of the marvels of the age, not only in quantity but also in variety. There is the humble yet most useful and reliable dollar watch, and side by side with it we have the princely chronometer at $300, which not only tells the time with such marvelous accuracy, but also the days, weeks, months and phases of the moon; there is the tiny button hole watch, one of the smallest in the world; also a lovely creation set in rubies and diamonds, which, needless to say, is for feminine adornment, together with one of the latest and most artistic watch arrangements in the shape of a gun metal watch bracelet. All these marvels of the watch makers' art are now on view in Messes. Challoner & Mitchell's windows, 47 and 49 Government street. It is the finest collection of watches ever displayed in B. C., and will well repay an inspection.

present at previous meetings dealing with the matter, and therefore was not cognizant of all the facts, yet with such light as he had on the question, he thought the board had acted rather hastily in dismissing Miss Cameron.

The resolution was adopted unanimously.

No other business offered, the board adjourned to the will of the chair. The members present were Trustees Boggs, Jay, Mowat, Dr. Hall and Mrs. Jenkins.

In compliance with the resolution passed at yesterday's meeting of the school board, the following are republished:

South Park Drawing Books

The board as a committee of the whole begs leave to report the following facts and recommendations on this matter:

1. The action of the education department in cancelling the marks for the term drawing of the South Park entrance class because of the ruling done in the free hand and model exercises was taken on the recommendation of the drawing examiner with the concurrence of the other examiners.

2. By direction of the minister of education, to whom Miss Cameron appealed, the books were subsequently examined under his personal supervision, with the result that the original decision in regard to them was confirmed.

3. Your committee, consisting of five members of the board, have personally examined the books, and are satisfied that the finding of the examiner in regard to them was fully justified; a finding which, moreover, has been emphatically endorsed by two professional draughtsmen after a thorough examination of the books.

4. The action of the department in cancelling the marks on these books was intended as a rebuke to the teachers for unsatisfactory instruction, and particularly for disregarding the direction which had been repeatedly given them, that no ruling whatever was to be allowed in the free hand exercises. How inefficient that instruction must have been is shown by the fact that, apart entirely from the term work under consideration, the average of marks obtained by the pupils of the South Park school for the free hand drawing done on examination day was lower than in any other city school of the province, save one.

5. That the department did not intend to reflect upon the good faith of the pupils by the treatment accorded their drawing books, but to deal with them rather as the victims of inefficient instruction, is shown by the fact that not a pupil who had otherwise earned promotion to the High school was allowed to fail because of a low mark in drawing.

6. In view of all the facts, the members of the committee are fully satisfied with the manner in which the department has dealt with this matter.

7. As children should be permitted or required to testify under oath only in cases of extreme necessity, and then under proper authorization and sanction, the committee wholly disapproves of Miss Cameron's action in calling upon pupils without such authorization to make sworn statements in her behalf simply because she resented an adverse professional criticism from the department; and the committee recommends that Miss Cameron be informed that all affidavits taken by her from pupils must be immediately forwarded to the secretary of the board.

Victoria, B. C., November 12, 1905.

F. H. Eaton, Esq., Secretary School Board, City:

Dear Sir—I have to acknowledge receipt of your communication enclosing copy of a report signed by five members of the board re drawing marks awarded South Park pupils at recent entrance exam., and to note an inaccuracy in the same. No affidavits were taken "on my behalf"; any that were taken were taken on behalf of the children. I have no affidavits in my possession.

(Sgd.) AGNES DEANS CAMERON.

Experts and Others

Sir—Mr. Blair has declared that twenty-nine pupils of South Park cheated in their work; two experts (?) back up his finding, and five members of the school board concur.

I am not an expert in the Blair system of drawing; it is a peculiar system. In judging it, Mr. Blair himself is not infallible.

To anyone whose mind is open to conviction these two letters will prove that. The boy Clarence Muirhead was a newcomer to my class, very anxious to try entrance, and he was allowed to put his book in with those of the regular pupils. His statement follows:

Victoria, September 22, 1905

I, Clarence Muirhead, solemnly affirm:

1. I am in my fifteenth year.

2. I attended the High school in Grand Rapids, Mich.

3. On coming to Victoria I attended the Boys' Central school for about a week.

4. Removing to James Bay, I entered South Park school, and attended there just 33 days before the entrance examination.

5. Having the whole of the drawing book to finish, as well as the Canadian and English history to learn, all of which was new to me, I took my drawing book home, so as to do some of the drawing.

6. I told Miss Speers that I knew how to do the model and free-hand drawing. I thought I did. I had done in Grand Rapids drawing in the schools.

7. All the model and free-hand pages in the Blair's No. 4 book were done at home by me (pages 1, 4, 13, 17, 19, 21, 23).

8. On these seven pages I used a ruler and compass wherever I could use them. Every straight line was ruled; and wherever a compass would work I used it. So far as I can remember not one line was done free-hand, if a ruled line could be used instead.

9. I was working at my work till the last minute, and I didn't send it to Miss Fraser till the very day I went up to the High school to my examination.

10. I do not mean to cheat.

11. This is the whole truth.

(Signed) CLARENCE W. MUIRHEAD.

Here is a book really that of an outsider to the class, in which by actual count, there are between 80 and 100 ruled lines.

What has Mr. Blair to say about this book?

From the Rev. W. L. Clay, whose little daughter is one of the twenty-nine condemned pupils, I have this note:

Dear Miss Cameron—Muirhead's book was taken up and showed me as being the only book done according to regulations—no ruled lines being found in it where ruling was forbidden by the regulations. This was Mr. Robinson's statement of Mr. Blair's judgment, as far as I can recall his method of stating it.

(Signed) W. LESLIE CLAY.

Comment is unnecessary.

DESERTERS GET THEIR DUES.

Weeping and Wailing by British Sailors Who Overstayed Their Leave.

New York, Nov. 20.—About 200 sailors from the British squadron commanded by Prince Louis of Battenberg were missing from their ships when the squadron made ready to sail today. Several of those who had overstayed their leave were turned away when they tried to board their ships. As it was within a few hours of the fleet's sailing time when they made their appearance, the officers treated them as deserters. The officers said that they were willing to lose these men on the principle that they are worthless and their loss a good riddance. Many of the rejected sailors cried. Their uniforms in some cases had been taken from them and they had spent all their money before returning to the warships. Many of them immediately applied to the immigration authorities for their return to England.

Squadron Sets Sail.

The British warships set sail shortly before noon and proceeded down the Hudson river, bound for Gibraltar.

The following telegram from Prince Louis was received by the Associated Press this afternoon via the Marconi wireless station at Babylon, L. I.: "Rear admiral commanding, captains, officers and men of the British squadron, now regretfully on its way to Europe, desire to express their most cordial thanks to all those who, by their warm welcome and splendid hospitality have contributed towards making the stay of the squadron in American waters truly delightful."

RUSSIA AND JAPAN.

Question Settled Relating to Representative at Mikado's Court.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 20.—The question of rank of the Russian legation at Tokio is practically settled, Japan agreeing to accept M. Bakhmereff as minister with the understanding that the legation later will be raised to an embassy. During the negotiations now in progress at Pekin between Baron Komura, the special envoy of Japan, and the Chinese officials, Russian diplomacy has been directed simply to safeguarding Russian interests at Pekin.

The Chinese government has already given Russia assurance that it will not enter into any secret treaty with Japan covering Manchuria, and Russia will be entitled to the benefits of any privileges Japan obtains.

More Terrible Than War!

More terrible than war, famine or pestilence is that awful destroyer, that hydra-headed monster, Consumption, that annually sweeps away more of earth's inhabitants than any other single disease known to the human race.

"It is only a cold, a trifling cough," say the careless, as the irritation upon the delicate mucous membrane causes them to hack away with an irritable tickling of the throat. When the irritation settles on the mucous surface of the throat, a cough is the result. To prevent Bronchitis or Consumption of the Lungs, do not neglect a cough however slight as the irritation spreading throughout the delicate lining of the sensitive air passages soon leads to fatal results. If on the first appearance of a cough or cold you would take a few doses of you would save yourself a great deal of unnecessary suffering. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup contains all the life-giving properties of the pine trees of Norway, and for Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough and all Throat and Lung affections it is a specific. Be sure when you ask for Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup to get it. Don't be humbugged into taking something else. Price 25 cts.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

Miss Lena Johnston, Toledo, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for throat troubles after taking numerous other remedies, and I must say that nothing can take the place of it. I would not be without a bottle of it in the house."

TOO CLEVER FOR WHITNEY.

Roosevelt Refuses to Be Compromised on Question of Reciprocity.

Boston, Nov. 20.—Henry M. Whitney, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor at the last election, tonight made public correspondence between President Roosevelt and himself concerning statements said to have been made by the president last winter to a Massachusetts committee on reciprocal trade relations.

The president declined to enter into a discussion with a similar committee last week, stating that Mr. Whitney, as a member of last year's committee, misrepresented his views. A letter from Mr. Whitney to the president and the president's reply were given out tonight. Mr. Whitney's letter said he had been condemned unheard and called upon the president's sense of fairness for a personal hearing. "Whether the hearing is granted or not" Mr. Whitney said, "I shall regret more than anything else that the

is not to have the endorsement of your great name and potent aid."

The president's reply was a refusal to grant another interview. He points out that Mr. Whitney again misrepresented him when he says the cause of reciprocity is not to have his endorsement and aid.

"Nothing that I have said," the president's letter continues, "has given you the slightest warrant for this assertion and when in the very letter asking for an interview and denying that you ever misrepresented me, you incorporate another deliberate misstatement, you can hardly wonder that I decline to see you."

THE WEATHER.

Meteorological Office,
Victoria, November 20—8 p. m.

SYNOPSIS.

A vast and important area of high pressure is central on the Vancouver Island and Washington coasts, and its limits have extended inland across the Rockies to Alberta and Montana, while from Saskatchewan a trough of low pressure extends southward to Utah. Snow has fallen at Barkerville and light rain on the Columbia river, but elsewhere both east and west of the Rockies the weather is fair and moderately cold. In the Yukon it has become much colder, the mercury falling to 6 below zero.

A COMMISSION OF ENQUIRY.

The position of affairs in regard to the dismissal of Miss Cameron from the principalship of the South Park school has taken a new and rather unexpected turn. As will be seen by the report of the proceedings of the school board, a special meeting of which was held yesterday afternoon, it has been decided to ask the government to issue a commission for the purpose of making a judicial enquiry into the circumstances which have led up to the present juncture of affairs. Whether the government will accede to such a request remains to be seen; but at all events it demonstrates the desire of the school board to satisfy the public as to the propriety of its action.

At first sight the suggestion of a royal commission for such a purpose looks very much like the making of a mountain out of a molehill; but members of the board say in defence of their position that the circumstances have been magnified to such proportions by the public as to call for extraordinary action. Petitions for Miss Cameron's reinstatement have been widely circulated, and a proposal to hold a series of public meetings has been made. As the result of the agitation now on foot, the question is likely to become a factor in the next school trustee election, and of local politics generally. The trustees hold that they cannot reinstate the principal of South Park school without declaring themselves in the wrong, and that without a full and judicial investigation of the facts upon which they based their action of dismissal there can be no finality as to the rights and wrongs of the case. The Colonist has no opinions to offer in the matter, except that an investigation of some kind, by which to lay all the facts before the public, was in order. Upon the face of it the school board is the best judge of its own actions, and with the members must remain the responsibility of justifying the course it has adopted. The position of the Colonist, which can only stand in the relation of an outsider so far as the facts are concerned, is that the school board must stand or fall as the result of an enquiry judicial in its character. If the facts disclosed be favorable to the board, public interests demand that its action be upheld; if not, it means the vindication of Miss Cameron and her immediate reinstatement.

GOOD ROADS ASSOCIATIONS.

A few years ago a Good Roads Association for this province was formed. Like so many other organizations formed with useful objects in view, it went the way of all things. A "hurrah" meeting and a few general meetings and we have heard no more of it. This was probably the fault of no one in particular. The association in its personnel covered the whole of the province; the expenses of attending meetings and carrying on the work were provided for voluntarily; the results, if any, would have been general and not particular, and so it naturally lapsed into a condition of "innocuous desuetude"; in fact, died out of existence. This may or may not be a matter of regret. It is questionable to what extent a voluntary association can do good unless there are some "sinews of war" behind it to assure permanency of effort. There are many illustrations of that in British Columbia, but one that comes to mind is the Provincial Mining Association. It is not, it is true, dead, but it sleepeth, and it may be questioned if sufficient funds can be again subscribed to awaken it to its erstwhile vigor and to keep it awake.

A good roads association could do good work in this province, as it is doing elsewhere, but there are special difficulties in the way. One is the extent of the roads and the sparsity of population. Another is that, outside of the comparatively few municipalities, the roadwork of the province is in the hands of the government, and the road official, of whatever grade, is not too amenable to the gentle and persuasive influence of the outsider. He is more apt to resent than to accept advice on the subject of road-building. It is, therefore, much easier where there is a measure of local control to exercise an influence in this direction and to complete effective organization. Another thing to be taken into consideration is that the government work is usually of a better or more permanent character than that carried on by municipalities. This we find exemplified in the neighboring state of Washington, where the country roads are an object lesson in the methods of how to do things the worst possible way. They are simply abominable, although the natural conditions for road-building are very similar to what they are here. The roads there are constructed and maintained under county supervision. We are not surprised, therefore, to find that in Washington state, where such a necessity exists for improvement, that the good roads movement is taking root firmly. An enthusiastic meeting of the Washington Good Roads Association was held at Walla Walla on the 10th and 11th instants, and many subjects pertaining to good roads were discussed. One of these was the working of convicts on the roads for a portion of the time. Resolutions were also adopted providing for the employment of an organizer to form a road organization in each county of the state. Another asked the various boards of county commissioners, city councils, chambers of commerce and commercial clubs to contribute according to their population to make up a fund of $4,000 to pay the salary and expenses of the organizer. A resolution was also adopted providing for the appointment of a committee of five on legislation. This committee is to draft and secure the introduction at the next legislature of all necessary good road measures. This is specified to include a bill for the employment of convict labor not otherwise required to operate the jute mill and other industries as may be required to properly maintain the penitentiary, on the public highways of the state; also a bill defining the duties of the state highway commission, and such other legislation as the Good Roads Association may consider advisable.

We are told that the efforts of the association have already resulted in a general improvement of the roads. It seems, however, evident that state aid is necessary in order to provide sufficient funds for carrying on the work on an efficient basis. It all depends, after all, upon an efficient and zealous secretary and directorate, who must have money at their disposal. We should like to see the local government take into consideration the putting of the roads of the province on a basis of scientific construction and maintenance. It costs a little more at the outset to apply the best methods, but the results in economy in the long run would amply repay the province for the increased expenditure. One difficulty which exists in the province in respect to road-building is that a road or trail is wanted to a mine or a new settlement, and expedition is the most important feature of the work. There is usually neither time nor money available to build the road as it should be built. One never knows, either, whether a road built in this way is going to be permanent. There is a number of roads that are practically in disuse now from the fact that the excitement which gave rise to them has died out. Under such circumstances the money is wasted at best.

MINISTERIAL VISITS.

The Premier and Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works have returned to Victoria after a long and interesting trip through the southern interior, reference to which is made elsewhere. They have been received everywhere on their travels with great cordiality. The newspapers in the districts through which they have gone have contained reports of their reception, and of the various matters that have been brought to their attention and discussed during their tour. From these, which appear in papers unfriendly as well as friendly in a political way, we judge that the visit has been highly successful, with prospects of very good results following. The general question of ministerial visits has been discussed by provincial papers as a consequence of this and previous tours by the ministers of the McBride administration, and as a rule favorably. In certain quarters there is a disposition to continue the carping criticism about "ministerial jaunts" at the public expense. A minister of the Crown is always the subject of censure, no matter what course he pursues in this regard. If he stays at home and devotes himself closely to office work, he is blamed for not making himself more familiar with the people of the various districts and finding out their requirements. If he is disposed to go about and see the country for himself and judge of the merits of the various matters that are recommended for his consideration, he is censured for spending the people's money.

There is much less legitimate criticism due to adopting the latter course. However diligent a minister may be in finding out the views of the people by correspondence or by meeting them in his office, he can never achieve the same satisfactory results by dealing at long range with important subjects affecting the material welfare of some particular part of the province as by personal contact with the people at their own homes and investigating the conditions on the spot. We know how very difficult it is to arrive at a satisfactory understanding in regard to most business matters by correspondence. We may write volumes of explanations and yet fail to reach the vital point in an agreement which might be arrived at by a few minutes' heart to heart talk. What is true of ordinary business life is much more true of the business of political life, in which the personal is always a large element.

It is well for the members of any government and the people to know each other personally. It is well for the members of a government to find out for themselves the position of affairs in each district as far as that is possible. They, as a consequence, judge intelligently respecting the recommendations of the representatives or of the officials of the government, or of other persons regarding the various matters that come before them at various times. They are enabled to know the public feeling locally in regard to each of these matters, and they are not at the mercy of their supporters. The members of the McBride ministry are, therefore, to be commended for doing what was to a great extent neglected by previous administrations. We think some of the mistakes for which the latter were most severely blamed arose out of not being sufficiently in touch with local sentiment throughout the province.

The people appreciate being looked after not merely before election times, but all during the term of parliament. It gives the impression, at least, that the interest of the government in their welfare is not spasmodical and for political purposes. A very successful politician in eastern Canada, who had occupied a seat in the House of Commons continuously for many years, was asked the secret of his success, because he was not a particularly brilliant man. "By starting in to canvass for the next election the day after the last," he replied. So that, even if the interest is only feigned for political purposes, it is appreciated, and it cannot but be very useful in guiding the candidate carefully through the mazes of public opinion. No man can know what the people think about him or about others unless he mingles freely among them, and whether as a politician he is seeking votes or seeking to find out the real requirements of the country, the knowledge thereby gained must be of great use.

Montreal Gazette: Addressing the Political Science Club of the University of Toronto the other evening, Mr. H. J. Pettypiece, M. L. A., told a story about a friend of his who had to ship a printing press from Montreal to Kamloops, B. C. The freight was $1.47 per hundred. The friend, according to Mr. Pettypiece, did some figuring, and sent the press from Montreal to Vancouver, thence to Sydney, Australia, back to Vancouver, and then to Kamloops. The charges for this were only $1.35 per hundred. They must have wanted that press in Kamloops badly to wait six months in order to save at the most $5.

SUCCESS IN ADVERTISING

What Space an Advertisement Should Occupy—That Should be an Easy Matter to Settle—There Are Certain Rules Which Apply to All Space Buying.

(By Allan West.)

CHAPTER 6.

How much space should an advertisement occupy?

How much space should a city occupy?

As much as it needs, to accommodate the people.

How much space should a store occupy?

As much as it needs to accommodate its stock, and by the same token an advertisement should occupy the space it takes to tell the facts.

Most advertisers do not figure this way. They buy a set space in a newspaper and figure out their advertising to fit that space.

To fit advertising to the space is like fitting the clothes to the man.

Newspapers do not proceed on that principle in presenting the news.

The Rule in the Newspaper Office.

The rule is to fit the space to the subject.

A big item of news comes in. The editor says:

"Give it a good story on the first page."

"How much space?" asks the reporter.

"What it needs," answers the editor.

An unimportant item comes along, society or something.

"What space?"

"Boil it down to a stickful, room is scarce tonight."

A big shipment of new goods arrives at the store.

New styles,

New fabrics,

A bewildering array that everybody wants to know about.

Common Sense Says "Tell the Story."

It's news to the purchasing public.

Sense says:

"Tell the story. Tell the whole story. Give it the space it needs.

"People are interested in that stuff while it's new. They want the story now while it's news.

"Don't cut down the story by leaving out the interesting facts. Interesting facts are too precious. News that people want to read is hard to get—just as hard or harder in getting store news as in getting newspaper news.

"So follow Greeley's, Dana's Gillam's advice—print the news while it is news.

"The news, the whole news and nothing but the news."

Remember, the public do not like cold news any more than they like cold hash.

So serve it hot.

Serve it fresh.

The Case of a Merchant Who Knew His Business.

I know merchants who do that—and win. I have one in mind.

"I go to New York and put thousands into goods," he told me.

"I come back and the goods begin to arrive. My money is wrapped up in these goods. My money stays wrapped up till they sell.

"I tell the public about the goods fast as they arrive. I sell just as fast as I can.

"The faster I sell, the better the prices I get. Because the price depends on the freshness of the goods, the newness of the styles. Season advances and prices must drop till I am selling at a loss at the tail end but glad to get my money out to put into something new that will sell at a profit."

Incredible folly for that man to cut down his space to something contracted for in telling that story—almost as bad as expanding his story when he hasn't much to say to fill some cut and dried space that he is paying for.

The experience of George P. Rowell is that a full page always pays.

Wise Advertisers Buy Space to Use at Will.

So wise advertisers now try to buy space to use at will—a column, half a page, even two pages when they require it.

Half a column, two inches, no space at all, when they do not need bigness to tell their story.

Newspapers meet them half way—give a rate of so much an inch for so many inches to be used within the year and the newspapers benefit by the arrangement.

The benefit is first of all the advantage the plan is to the advertiser.

It is good for him, it helps him sell goods at a profit and so he is in better position to buy good space of the newspapers and learns to appreciate the value of advertising.

Second, it encourages advertisers to use large space periodically and thus keep the papers well filled.

The proprietor of the Democrat and Chronicle of Rochester, N. Y., once told me how he kept his columns well filled all the year round by expanding advertisers into bigness when season was ripe and letting them subside when the season wasn't ripe.

Advertising Space Regulated by Seasons.

For instance, a carriage house.

All the year round it runs a little advertising—just to keep the name before the public.

Carriage season arriving it comes out with half pages to picture new styles.

Show advantages of its stock or make.

Quote special bargains.

Then some other concern that does not wish to advertise big at this time finds that its season is a little later and in turn uses big space and subsides to smallness the rest of the year.

Applied to specialty advertisers this works out fine for it gives the advertiser an advantage of a yearly rate for his big spaces which would otherwise cost him too much at transient rates.

Applied to all-the-round advertisers it works equally well, for all advertisers have times when they need large space to proclaim new goods or special sales or for the purpose of telling a special story of something regarding the public requires to be educated.

Do Not be "Cut-and-Dried."

Totalized this argument about space sums up in the advice not to be cut-and-dried in your methods.

The newspaper is not. It gives subjects the space and the position they deserve.

Of course if you happen to have a fine position and a set space in which you have educated the public to look for your announcements, you have an advantage which it behooves you to stick to, but the best advertisers who have these gilt edge positions and run a certain style of advertising year in and year out with profitable results, depart from precedent occasionally. For instance, the Paine Furniture Company of Boston, which is about the best furniture advertiser in the world, has a regular space every day on the front page of the best Boston papers, but semi-annually it runs big spaces to announce special sales.

It could still further improve its advertising by running special articles once in a while on new styles in furniture, giving the public much needed information.

For the advertiser who has not been able to secure one of these elegant positions which seem to advantage him over others, can offset things by using spaces of differing sizes and position, and thus get before the public eye equally as well or better through following the best methods known to wisest advertisers, methods which place fact-telling first and space second.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

[The Editor does not hold himself responsible for views expressed by correspondents.]

THE CANADIAN COLLEGE-AT-ARMS.

Sir,—The heraldic article which you reprint from the Montreal Standard, contains some interesting information, though a little out of date. An advantage of long life is the enhanced opportunities of reviewing one's opinions. My belief, hitherto, has been that British dominion in Canada—now rather a large word—and the B. N. A. Act of 1867, as an incident in that dominion, had a parental origin in the British Parliament. But now, according to the above article, six gentlemen of the College-at-Arms in Canada, ayer that the said act derives its validity from the Treaty of Cession of New France to Britain in 1763, following the Britannic-French war—the French population concerned, amounting then to about 65,000, occupying the immediate banks of the Lower St. Lawrence and its tributaries, and the six "Collegers" further affirm, that the said Treaty "is supreme as the fount of every legal deed, decree and proposition in Canada, or in relation thereunto" — another attribution which is rather upsetting, in view of the largeness of our present country and the silence and inapplicableness of the Treaty as to matters, generally, in its territorial subdivisions. I hate to trouble you, but hope you will relieve my historical anxiety on the above point. If, technically, any descendant of a seigneur, or N. S. baronet, or U. E. Loyalist, can acquire, through a Canadian College-at-Arms, a right to armorial bearings, and is willing to pay the expenses, and to be laughed at by unappreciative moderners, let him enjoy the distinction. You will observe that the six "collegers" are dead in earnest, for they propose, rather arbitrarily, to "enforce" an injunction against the "London Herald's College," on account of its overbearingness. The latter institution, as a nurturer of snobbishness, is rather laughed at in the old country, but, in its moribund condition it serves, occasionally, the limited, useful purpose of tracing pedigrees that have a bearing on property rights. Meanwhile, the "Canadian College-at-Arms" solicits subscriptions, of course. Is the whole article a joke?

INQUIRER.

THE DAUGHTERS OF THE PEOPLE.

"The servant class," writes Mrs. Alec Tweedie, in the Daily Telegraph, "is dying out," and she finds one contributory reason to be the passion for tawdry finery which is often associated with a contempt for domestic service, and the choice of what is considered a more independent life. Commenting on Mrs. Tweedie's letter, which has provoked a flood of correspondence, the Telegraph says: "There is no gainsaying the increasing unpopularity of domestic service with the class of girls which, half a century ago, had no option but such employment. They dislike its inevitable restraints, and overlook its manifold advantages. They prefer to be waitresses, or shop assistants, and to work longer hours for far less pay, so long as they have their evenings free. It is no use to prove to them that they are not so well off. 'The prison unto which we doom ourselves No prison is.' They prefer their own way, because it is their own way. The delight in many of them in cheap and tawdry finery is, as our correspondent says, deplorable. They fall ready victims to the worthless gew-gaws with which the inferior shops are filled—things which look to be, and indeed are, a miracle of cheapness, and are all the more pernicious on that account. There is nothing good made nowadays which is not closely imitated in every respect save only in that of its goodness; and there seems to be no fashion, however expensive, which does not filter down in time from the highest to the lowest society. And, of course, it gets spoilt and vulgarized on the way. But it is only fair to remember that all classes are imitative of the classes immediately above them; and if cartwheel hats and hair 'puffed and frizzed into a mop' offend the artistic eye of ladies, it is from their own example that these objectionable things were derived. Flashy jewelry will abound just as long as high-class jewelry—the imperative instinct of self-adornment is common both to the 'Colonel's Lady and Judy O'Grady.' Mrs. Tweedie suggests that a better standard of taste might be inculcated in the elementary schools, and that the schoolmasters and schoolmistresses should do what they can to check the finery in which the children come to school. She points out, truly enough, that at all great public schools a neat regulation dress is prescribed, to which parents agree without demur. Moreover, boys themselves are savagely intolerant of any departure from convention in the way of dress. But there is no analogy between the public school and the public elementary school. The tawdry finery and ridiculous garm in which some children of the poorest classes are clothed often represent the pathetic efforts of their mothers to dress them 'respectably.' The mistake is woeful, but it represents a well-meant effort; and until the well-to-do classes adopt a greater simplicity they will find it difficult to persuade their social inferior of simplicity's virtues. The distinctive class or caste dress has gone for ever; picturesque as it often was, it could not withstand the growth of the democratic idea and the shoddy cheapness of the machine-made imitation with which the country is flooded. Public taste, however, is not corrupted in the schools, but out of them; nor is it fair to say that the educational authorities prefer French and music to cooking, hygiene, and the domestic arts. There are, certainly, far too many subjects taught in the elementary schools. The general smattering of undigested knowledge makes little lasting impression; while in the smaller schools the chief teachers find their time engrossed in filling up endless returns for headquarters. But in fairness to those who arrange the syllabus, the homely arts are by no means neglected among the general subjects of instruction, and needlework, cookery, laundry work, and domestic economy, form part of the education of all the older girls. Why so little good seems to result therefrom is another question, but the education committees are clearly alive to the importance of these subjects, both in the day and evening schools. Such extra subjects as French, Latin, bookkeeping, higher mathematics, and science, which are taught in certain cases to advanced pupils, are no part of the ordinary curriculum. They only concern a small proportion of the older scholars, and no scheme of education is worthy of the name which does not offer a chance of acquiring something more than the rudiments of knowledge to those who are desirous of getting on. The last charge that can be made against the young people of this country, of whatever station, is that they are over-educated, nor is it easy to discover what is the subject taught to girls of what may be called the servant class that unsettles them for domestic service. The parent is probably more to blame than the teacher, and the tendencies of the time more than either."

VICTORIA.

(By William Steward Gordon.)

O rock-ribbed city of the western sea,
Who could not tune his lyre in song for thee!

With solemn castles gazing out across the sea,
With grand Olympics smiling back at thee.

You float in Nipon's soft salubrious breeze,
A tropic island in the northern seas.

A full-blown rose of old Victorian days,
And loath to leave your cherished mother's ways.

Enriched with all the century can give,
You still take time to think and feel and live,

As a ripple in a treasure laden stream,
Gathers the gold-dust born through shade and gleam.

So thou hast sifted well the flowing tide
Of ruthless Western wealth and Eastern pride.

Upon the "Lion's" mane you safely cling
Nor fear the rustle of the "Eagle's" wing.

O portal fair to Yukon's oil and gold.
Prize well the envied vantage ground you hold!

O seagirt goddess rich in mead and mine,
Guard well "Britannia's far-flung battle line!"

Local News

Friendly Help.—The ladies of the Friendly Help Association desire to have it known that donations of all clothing will be very acceptable this month, especially women's and children's. They may be sent to the market hall.

Old Women's Home.—Those desirous of contributing plants or bulbs to the Old Women's Home will kindly forward them during this week to 49 Maclure street, or to Porter, butcher, Government street, who will forward them to the Home.

Fisheries Commission.—At the board of trade rooms this morning an open session of the fisheries commission will be held for the taking of evidence. The sittings open at 11 o'clock. Any one having information to impart is requested to be present. The question to be discussed here will likely be that of the trap fishing intersts.

Seamen's Institute.—Special thanks are hereby tendered by the manager of the Seamn's Institute to the B. C. Furnishing Company for their kind donation of three new carpets, given the other day on behalf of the institute, which were much needed and are most gratefully received.

Agricultural Society.—Tomorrow evening the annual supper and ball of the Saanich Agricultural society will be held. Sehl's orchestra will furnish music for the occasion and tickets admitting gentlemen and lady are $1. The annual meeting of the society will be held on Saturday afternoon next.

Killed Elk.—News was received from the west coast by the Queen City, that an Indian is alleged to have killed four elk at the end of the southeast arm Quatsino Sound. The constable will prosecute him under the game act The Indian claims to have dried all the meat for the winter.

Removes From Victoria.—The Kelowna Clarion in its issue of Saturday last contains the following: "Dr. J. W. Nelson Shepherd, a graduate of the North Pacific Dental College, Portland, arrived from the coast a few days ago and will locate here permanently for the practice of his profession, and has secured an office in the K. S. U. building. He has been with Dr. R. Ford Verrinder, of Victoria, for a number of years and comes well recommended."

Carry-Reid.—On Saturday last at Christ church, Vancouver, a quiet wedding took place when Mr. H. E. C. Carry was joined in matrimony by Rev. C. C. Owen, rector, to Mrs. Charlotte Reid, relict of the late Senator Reid. The groom is well known as a civil engineer at one time connected with the C. P. R. service. He is the son of the late John Carry, D. D. Mr. and Mrs. Carry left for the Sound cities in the afternoon.

Under New Management.—The Hotel Wilson, of Nanaimo, B. C., the proprietorship of which has recently been assumed by Mr. Jas. R. McKinnell, who has subjected the Hotel Wilson to a most thorough overhauling and modernizing throughout. The rates are $2 per day, free bus, baths and other modern conveniences being provided for the guests of the house. The Nanaimo-Alberni stages leave the hotel Tuesdays and Fridays at 1:30 p. m. The new proprietor is leaving nothing undone to make his house the most deserving and popular in that city, and travelers will find the Wilson equal to the best from all standpoints.

Discoveries at Quatsino.—News came from Quatsino by the Queen City that the hematite iron on the West Arm has been further prospected this year. Eleven additional claims have been staked adjacent to the twenty-two recently acquired by Seattle capitalists. The new claims have been gone over carefully and where the surface vegetation and soil can be removed the bog iron is found underneath. This great deposit of iron close to salt water indicates a great future for Quatsino. The total claims staked extend over an area of about 1,000 acres, and as soon as the capitalists get hold of them Quatsino will go ahead steadily. The June property is being developed by Messrs. Grant and Lippy. A tunnel of 400 feet has been run to tap the showing above.

Big Order for Trees.—The Kelowna Clarion, in its issue of Saturday last, says: "The Kelowna Land & Orchard Co., Ltd., have placed an order for 12,000 trees with Mr. Layritz of Victoria. A large number of these trees are to be planted out for lot holders, and the company will take care of them for a few years. All these trees are being planted on the bench properties, and it goes without saying that in a few years' time they will be producing some of the finest fruit in Canada, as the bench land is admirably suited for fruit growing. The splendid irrigation system of this enterprising company, completed this fall, now consists of over seven miles of flume and ditch, and opens up what is assuredly A1 orchard land. We must extend our congratulations to the K. L. & O. Co. for the manner in which they have improved their property, and advanced the value of the bench lands as a whole."

Victoria Singer Abroad.—Miss Susie Green, writing to a friend in Victoria under date of November 8 from New York says: It looks as though I am booked for a long stay, as "Happyland" is so successful that it is liable to stay six months here, and I do not like to leave Ethel alone. She is certainly a very lucky girl, not for what she is doing now, but for the clever understudy she has, and for which the Shuberts have guaranteed her a New York hearing. All her costumes are made exactly like De Wolf Hopper's star, and she knows the part thoroughly of course and will make a big hit when she does play, which she hopes will not be yet until her voice is better. She has a grand teacher and takes a singing lesson every morning. He is very enthusiastic about her voice and takes a great deal of interest in her because, as he says, she will be a big advertisement for him when she plays Miss Clark's part. You can imagine what he thinks of her when she only pays for two lessons a week and he gives her six—four for nothing. She is very happy in her work and I think has chosen the one vocation for her.

Use telephone to Ladysmith.

King's Daughters.—The King's Daughters are giving a musical tea at Mrs. George Robertson's residence on George street tomorrow from 2 to 6.

Again Operated On.—Harry Monteith, who was the victim of a shooting accident a short time ago, in which he was shot in the foot by some unknown hunter, was removed to St. Joseph's hospital again on Sunday. He underwent another operation yesterday, in which more of the bone of his foot was removed. The operation was reported to have been successful.

A Lively Runaway.—A very lively runaway took place yesterday afternoon, when a spirited horse, attached to a light rig, broke away from where he was tied near the cemetery and continued on his course till he was stopped near the Reformed Episcopal church. The only damage done was a few scratches to the paint of the vehicle.

Valuable Fertilizers.—The laboratory of the inland revenue department just to hand places the fish guano as manufactured by the Pacific Oil-Guano Co. as amongst the highest on the list out of 80 fertilizers. This fertilizer is handled by the Brackman-Ker Milling Co. and is considered by gardeners to be the most valuable for lawns, being entirely free from weeds.

B. C. Travelers.—The annual meeting of the British Columbia branch of the Northwest Commercial Travelers' association was held Saturday evening at Vancouver, Vice-President E. F. Gerster in the chair. Officers for the year were nominated but not elected. It was decided to hold the annual ball at the Hotel Vancouver between Christmas and New Year's Day.

Alamo Club.—The Alamo Club, under the management of Mrs. Lester, which was so successfully organized last Friday evening, will meet again Friday, November 24th, at 8 o'clock. Meetings from that date will be every second Friday, and as this is a club for masters and misses only, it is desired that members come early that the club may be closed early.

Had Good Shooting.—The numerous hunters who went out on Sunday report having had a good day's sport. On the E. & N. on Sunday more deer were brought down than has been the case for several weeks. They came from the Summit, 17-Mile Post, Goldstream and other small way stations, very few of those who set out, rifle in hand, returning without something to show for the day's hunt.

Exit Swimming Baths.—The high wind which was raging on Friday evening and Saturday last played havoc with the cofferdam at the swimming baths on the Dallas road. The cofferdam was constructed by the Tourist association to form a pool for bathing purposes. Both ends of the dam have been washed away. The dam cost in the neighborhood of $800.

Dallas Road Embankment.—Although another section of the concrete retaining wall was built on the Dallas road during the last summer it was not enough to prevent the waves from washing away another large portion of the bank during the recent heavy wind. During the storm the waves were washed as high as the road and a considerable portion of the bank fell in. In some parts only a few feet separate the bank from the roadway.

The Library.—With the arrival of the new books for the city library from the old country Dr. Hands has been able to have the catalogue of all the books prepared and it only requires to pass through the printer's hands before being presented to the public. No word has been heard of the books which were sent east to be rebound, but they are expected to arrive almost any time. When once they arrive it will not be many weeks before they are put in their places and are ready for the use of the patrons of the library.

Y. M. C. A. Meeting.—On Sunday afternoon the Y. M. C. A. auditorium was filled with men who listened with close attention to an address by Rev. F. T. Tapscott, M. A., entitled "Kill or Cure." Rev. Mr. Tapscott spoke of the wisdom of obeying Christ's figurative injunction to lose a hand or a foot rather than that the whole body should perish. Vocal solos by E. G. Hammond and A. Steele, and the presence of the Metropolitan Methodist orchestra, added much to the success of the gathering. It is the intention of the committee which has charge of this phase of the work to continue these meetings throughout the winter months. Men with helpful messages will be secured to speak and instrumental and vocal selections will be given each afternoon.

The Lenora Creditors.—By action made in the Supreme court at Vancouver on Saturday the sale of the property of the Lenora & Mt. Sicker Copper Mining Company, which was to have taken place tomorrow, is probably indefinitely deferred. The company went into liquidation some months ago and it was found that the mine was burdened with three mortgages. To satisfy these it was proposed to sell it, but the unsecured creditors, having learned that the first mortgage has been paid off, are now seeking for an accounting. Yesterday Mr. Parkes, of Messrs. Cowan & Reid's, obtained leave to begin an action on behalf of the unsecured creditors, and it will now be possible to take steps to postpone the sale of the assets.

New Mission Hall.—The ladies in charge of the arrangements in connection with the opening of the new W. C. T. U. mission hall on Yates street are sparing no effort to make the affair a success. The committees, which were appointed at a recent meeting, have been hard at work ever since and everything is practically ready for the opening. The formal opening will take place at 2:30 tomorrow, when His Honor the the Lieutenant-Governor will be present to officiate. The chair will be occupied by the Lord Bishop of Columbia, who has consented to be present at both the afternoon and evening entertainments. During the afternoon a fine programme will be presented, which will include vocal selections by Mrs. J. D. Helmcken and Mrs. (Dr.) Jones and piano selections by the Misses Snowcroft. The evening entertainment will commence at 8 o'clock sharp, and among those who will assist will be Mrs. Reid, Miss McCoy and Mr. W. Williams, who will be heard in vocal selections, Mrs. Gleason in a recitation, and Miss Haughton in a piano selection. Besides these the following members of the Ministerial association will address the meeting: Revs. Gladstone, Adams, Thompson, Leroy Dakin and Campbell. The meetings will be open to the public and a cordial invitation has been extended to all who may care to attend.

AS A CONVALESCENT FOOD

Mr. Wyman N. Thomas, Ompah, Addington Co., Ont., writes: "My wife had congestion of the lungs along with other troubles, and became very weak and run down. By the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food she was made as strong and well as ever. Of course I had a doctor, but she was weak, and it was Dr. Chase's Nerve Food which built her up."

Use telephone to Vancouver.

British Columbia Fruit Exhibit.—Captain Tatlow, minister of agriculture, was yesterday in receipt of a cable from R. M. Palmer, advising the department that the fruit shipment had arrived in splendid condition in England. Mr. Palmer crossed the Atlantic in advance of the consignment, which had to be transferred from the Steamship Barvarian to the Steamship Virginian on account of an accident to the former vessel. The fruit will be placed on display to advertise the horticultural resources of the province.

New Land Venture.—Smith Curtis, formerly member in the Provincial house for Rossland, and well known throughout the interior in mining circles, has gone into a new land venture. Mr. Curtis last year was successful in promoting the sale of the 10-acre plots on the Covert estate, just outside of Grand Forks. Now he has taken hold of another land settlement scheme. Situated on the Columbia river about four miles north of the international boundary and six miles from Trail on the Great Northern Railway Company's branch from Spokane to Nelson, are 1,200 acres of fruit land known as "Columbia Gardens." This land has been subdivided into lots containing from ten to forty acres and an extensive system of irrigation is under construction. The land is desirable for fruit orchards, the climate and soil in that section of the Columbia valley being well adapted for such purpose. Mr. Curtis is pushing the settlement in Manitoba and the Northwest.

Intending Settler's Inquiry.—The following is a sample of the many letters received by Secretary Herbert Cuthbert, of the Tourist association: "Will you please give me any information of what opportunities there are around Victoria for a place to grow fruit and raise poultry as I am coming up your way and would like to know what land is worth an acre, and under what terms I can buy, and what size the fruit and poultry farms are, and the best locations. Also the price of rough lumber per 1,000. The price of strong bakers flour per 100 pounds, and any other information that would be useful for me to know. I have not definitely decided in what particular district I will locate in as yet but feel drawn towards Victoria." "That letter comes from a practical man, one who is evidentally on the point of quitting Manitoba for a new location," said Mr. Cuthbert. "Our literature has come into his hands, not perhaps directly from this office, but through some other channel. He has become interested in the possibilities that Victoria and the island holds forth to his class. His enquiries are promptly answered, and while several letters may be exchanged, in the end he will doubtless come out himself and look the ground over. There are a number of others that the association is in correspondence with and the winter months, when the weather is around the zero point in the east, Manitoba and the new provinces—is the time when such letters are the most frequent."

A RELIABLE REMEDY FOR CROUP

With the dry, cold weather of the early winter months, parents of croupy children should be on the alert for ominous symptoms. There is no cause for anxiety when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is kept in the home. If this medicine is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough has appeared, the attack may be warded off. Mrs. S. Rosnthal, of Turner, Michigan, says: "We have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for ourselves and children for several years, and like it very much. I think it is the only remedy for croup and can highly recommend it." For sale by all druggists.

Premier McBride Returns Home

First Minister Gives Interesting Account of Trip Through the Interior.

Hearty Welcome Extended to Visitors by Hospitable Inhabitants.

Feeling a little tired and worn out after three weeks of almost constant travel, but otherwise in perfect health, Honorable Richard McBride returned home last night from his visit to the southern interior of the province. After reaching Nelson, he was joined by Robert Green, and the two returned to Vancouver, where the Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works was detained last night to meet the members of the civic council on matters connected with his department. He will arrive in the city on this evening's boat.

Seen at his residence last night, the Premier talked entertainingly to a Colonist representative about the tour and the general conditions existing in the Kootenays, the boundary, Osoyoos, Similkameen and Okanagan districts. His reception and that of the Commissioner of Lands and Works was most enthusiastic everywhere and in several of the cities and towns visited banquets and other entertainments were provided for the distinguished guests. Altogether their visit to the interior was replete with interest.

As head of the department of mines, the premier took particular interest in everything pertaining to this industry and stated that including the Lardeau, Slocan, Trail, Nelson and Ymir divisions as well, as the boundary district, the outlook was more encouraging than ever before. He regretted to note that while the Kootenay lumber industry was good, and the mills busy, there were many complaints on the part of the millmen that the prices to be obtained and the freight rates to the Northwest and Manitoba were still very unsatisfactory. In fact, there was evident a keen disappointment on all sides because of the failure of the Ottawa authorities to protect the industry. American lumber, the premier avows, is still being shipped into the new western provinces and Manitoba ad the competition is such as to compel the British Columbia mills to operate at a great disadvantage. The agricultural and horticultural development, Mr. McBride said, was simply amazing, particularly in the Kootenays and Okanagan, where a system of small holdings had become vogue and was attracting a fine class of settlers. The whole interior was forging ahead and with few exceptions the towns reflected the prosperity of the several sections in which they were located.

Speaking of his visit the premier said: "I left nearly three weeks ago to join Mr. Green at Nelson. On the way a day was spent at Revelstoke, where I met Mr. Thomas Taylor, M. P. P. The time was profitably spent inspecting the city and in the evening a banquet was tendered me which proved a most enjoyable non-political function. Revelstoke is today of the province. Its growth, particularly during the past two years, has been of a most substantial character. I was informed there was not a vacant house in the town and that many houses were rented in advance of construction."

"What are the causes leading up to this prosperity?" suggested the reporter.

"Briefly, its rapid industrial growth," replied the premier. "The city is becoming a distributing point for the Lardeau and Big Bend sections and is the centre of a big lumbering section, where many modern sawmills have been put up, notably at Arrowhead, and Comaplix, giving employment both in the mills and lumber camps to several hundred men. At Revelstoke, Mr. Lindmark is re-building at the Big Eddy on the site of the destroyed mill and the machinery has all been ordered. Besides the lumber industry there is a substantial local pay-roll at the shops of the C. P. R. The company has centered here all the work of repairs on the mountain division, which necessitates the employment of a big crew of skilled mechanics.

"From Revelstoke, in company with Mr. Taylor, the trip to Nelson was made via Nakusp and Slocan City. Though the new service provided by the Canadian Pacific involves several changes from train to steamer, the arrangements are so perfect as to cause no inconvenience to any traveler, the officials being more than kind and obliging to everyone. At Nelson and together we journeyed boek to the Lardeau by way of Lardo, Poplar Creek and Trout Lake City. A day was spent at Ferguson. For some time past work in several of the prominent mines of this camp had not been carried on to full capacity, but there is a great deal of quiet development in progress. A new strike at the Silver Cup has more than encouraged the mine owners and there is every promise of considerable activity the coming year. It is noticeable in this section that for the most part prospectors are doing development at their own expense, preferring to reap the full benefit of their labors rather than to share it with outside capital. The citizens of Trout Lake held a public meeting at the Oddfellows hall at which we were invited, and Mr. Green told me it was the largest and most representative gathering and Lardeau had ever seen. Afterwards we were entertained at a splendid banquet. The destiny of the Lardeau district as a mineral producer is assured beyond any question. The enterprising people of Trout Lake city were highly elated over the success of their ore exhibit at the recet Spokane Fruit fair, which carried on the first premium and gold medal over all other district exhibits. Though our time did not permit of our visiting Camborne we were pleased to learn that considerable development ·. both the gold, quartz and silver-lead mines was underway.

"Journeying south the next stop was made at Kaslo. Here the reception took the form of a smoking concert, which was very largely attended. Mayor Hedder occupied the chair and presided very happily over the meeting. After several addresses from those present was given. The enthusiasm in which the chief commissioner was received on all sides in his own constituency was most gratifying to his friends. The people of Kaslo undoubtedly realize he has his old home very near to his heart.

"At Nelson we were also very cordially received and entertained by the citizens. With renewed activity throughout the Kootenays and the convenient and central position this city occupies business at Nelson is looking up splendidly. The city by the lake is one of the best in the province, both from a residental and business standpoint, it is also a distributing centre for a large section of both the Kootenays as well as of the boundary and points further west.

"While there we met a thoroughly representative gathering of liberal conservatives and were privileged to take part in the proceedings which have brought into existence the Nelson Conservative Club, a fusion of both the local Conservative association and the Conservative union, and the members are working in harmony."

"What about the Nelson dispatches to some of the Coast papers indicating that differences still exist in the Conservative ranks?" interjected the reporter.

"I do not hesitate to say that with the exception of a few matters of minor importance the party is as

as in any other section of the interior," he promptly replied. "As must be expected in all organizations of a similar kind, questions arise from time to time that bring about various divergent opinions—this has been the case in Nelson. Mr. R. S. Lennie, the newly elected president of the club is one of the promising young men of the province, and holds the confidence of the United Conservatives in that city."

Asked regarding the reports alleging that the government would find a means of vacating the Nelson seat if Mr. Houston M. P. P., did not return, the premier flatly contradicted the alleged statements and was indignant at what he termed an outragious attempt on the part of the opposition press to misquote him. Continuing he said:

"With very great regret I read the sensational reports in certain papers, containing despatches from Nelson that I had threatened that some means would be found to secure the opening of this constituency. I desire most emphatically to deny this. There was never the slightest intention on the part of the government, nor was there anything said, to create the inference that the government proposed to make any action. Mr. Houston is the duly elected representative of the Nelson riding and has every right to continue in that capacity."

From Nelson the two ministers journeyed over the Columbia & Western railway, making the first stop where they were met by Mr. George Fraser, M. P. P., Mr. Ernest Miller, president of the Conservative Association, Mr. Martin Burrell, and Mayor Hammer. A visit of inspection was made to the big reduction works of the Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting & Power Company, the visitors being shown through the plant by General Superintendent Hodges and Treasurer Wooster of the local staff. Speaking of the smelter, Mr. McBride said: "The recent additions made by Mr. Hodges for the more economical and expeditious handling of the charges and flux reflects great credit on the superintendent, and to the visitor the process over the old system is both a clever and effective method of charging the furnaces.

"The Gateway City is proving one of the most important points in the Boundary district; not only is it recognized as a mining and smelting town, but in addition it takes a prominent position as a fruit growing and diversified farming centre. The cutting up of the original homesteads into smaller holdings has increased the population immediately surrounding the city to a considerable extent, and one cannot fail to note the many substantial suburban homes now being built on these 10 and 20 acre plots sufficient when cultivated in fruit to earn a splendid living for the owners. Accompanied by Mr. Fraser, we where we were met by Mayor George Rumberger, who is also president of the local Conservative Association, and Judge Williams. The mayor escorted us through the town and wound up the trip of inspection at the new city hall. This building is most conventently arranged for the purposes for which it was designed, and marks the enterprise and splendid ability of those who have charge of the civic welfare of the place. Phoenix has been managed on a very careful basis, and the city today does not owe a cent of bonded indebtedness. What with the big mines of the Granby and the Dominion Copper Company, and other nearby smaller properties, business is in a most healthy condition.

"Escorted by Judge Williams, we continued the trip down to Greenwood, where we stayed overnight and spent part of the next day. While in that city, Mr. Green and myself were invited to attend a meeting of the executive of the Conservative Association and discuss matters of local import, and met Mr. Sydney Johnson, president; E. G. Warren, secretary, and Duncan McIntosh. I also met my old friend Duncan Ross, M. P., and many other citizens. Greenwood impressed me during the brief time I was there as a very busy point, the people being enthused over the prospect of the early development of the many surrounding the city limits, such as the Providence, Helen, Barbara, E. P. U., Skylark, and a dozen others whose names I have forgotten. The smelter of the British Columbia Copper Company also adds a substantial quota to the pay roll of the town, and with the enlargements contemplated this plant will be capable of treating some 1,500 tons per day. At Boundary Falls the Dominion Copper Company is shortly to blow in its works, and plans are contemplated for increasing the capacity. It is giving away no secret to say that there are very substantial reports in the district of the proposed erection of two more large smelters.

"Midway presents a scene of considerable railroad construction activity. Here are to be noted the grades of the Midway & Vernon, the Columbia & Western extension of the Canadian Pacific and the V. V. & E. connection of the Great Northern railway. The two former are on the north side, and the latter on the south side of the Kettle river. Though press despatches have reported all kinds of hostilities taking place between certain of the rival companies, there were no signs of trouble at the time of our visit. In fact, Midway is Across the international line, opposite Midway, is Ferry, which proves quite an attraction to the visitor, being a typical American railway construction town, where revelry holds full sway. This place serves as headquarters for the commissariat and office staff of the Great Northern contractors. The visit to Midway was made in company with Mr. E. G. Warren and Mr. W. Fleming of Greenwood."

A Most Orderly Town

Westward from Midway—the present railway hub of the Boundary—the Premier and Chief Commissioner drove to Fairview, passin galong the lines of construction of the three roads, and particularly that of the V. V. & E. railway, around Anarchist mountain to the foot of Osoyoos lake, from which point it follows northward the Similkameen river. Mr. L. W. Shatford, M. P. P., joined the visitors at Fairview and journeyed with them over the Keremeos. Speaking of Fairview, Mr. McBride said that at present the closing down of the Stemwinder mine had affected business somewhat, but the town would receive the benefit of the work now being carried on by the Southern Okanakan Land Company in the settlement of the lands in the Osoyoos valley and immediately contiguous to the town. "The climate here is ideal, and it is admitted by experts that fruit culture, especially peach growing, will prove a most profitable venture on these lands," said the Premier.

The hospitable citizens of Keremeos and the nearby ranches tendere dthe ministers in the school house, and a banquet at the Central hotel, which was presided over by Mr. Charles A. Stoess, C. E. "The visit was made exceptionally agreeable to us both, though we were sorry that Mr. Frank Richter, the well known pioneer, who was indisposed, could not attend the two gatherings, and it was not until our return trip that we had the pleasure of meeting him. Coast people will hardly realize what Mr. Richter has done in exploiting the fruit and fodder resources of the Keremeos valley. The celebrated Hamburg grape is here cultivated in the open, and Mr. Richter has also demonstrated that the most delicate almonds and nuts can be grown with success. At this point Mr. W. H. Armstrong of Vancouver and associates are laying out a new townsite on the line of the V. V. & E., on the ranch formerly owned by Mr. Coulthard, another pioneer resident of the valley.

A Public Meeting

Hedley City and the Nickle Plate mine and mill were next visited, the trip up the valley of the Similkameen being one of the delightful features of the whole tour. The aerial trip up 4,000 feet into the clouds from Hedley to the Nickle Plate mine proved both a for the party, who were received at the mine by Superintendent Jones and shown through the property, which the Premier says is today one of the world's bonanza deposits. Returning from the mine, Mr. Lamb took the ministers through the Daly Reduction Company's mill. In the evening a public meeting was held, and after a banquet at the Hotel Similkameen was tendered the two visitors and the local member. Major Megraw was chairman on both occasions. "Hedley City is a most prosperous point," continued the Premier, "and in view of the expected development at an early date of other mining properties and the building of the V. V. & E., preparations are being made for many new buildings.

Novel and Interesting Experience

"The pretty town of Princeton, at the junction of the Similkameen and Tulameen rivers, was next visited, and our brief sta ymade most pleasant by Messrs. Waterman, Cook and Thomas of that town, and Judge Murphy of Granite Creek, and many other residents of the district. Here, too, a splendid public meeting was held, at which the board of trade petitioned the Chief Commissioner for several much needed improvements which will have the careful consideration of Mr. Green o nhis return. Iwas pleased indeed to renew acquaintances with many of especially Jim Wallace, who, after a year's illness, is gradually recovering his health. The chief development in progress in that section of the Similkameen is being done by the South Yale Mining Company at the Sunset mine, on Copper mountain. I learnt that development is proceeding satisfactorily, and new ore bodies had been located with the aid of a diamond drill. Robert Stevenson, so long and prominently connected with the mining development of the valley, is still on deck, hale and hearty as ever."

From Princeton the party doubled back to Keremeos, taking the White Lake road to Penticton. En route they had luncheon with Mr. Hiram Inglee at the lake, which, according to the premier, is one of the finest ranches in the country, owned by one of the most hospitable men in Southern British Columbia.

"At Penticton, the headquarters for the Southern Okanagan Land Company, Mr. Shatford spent some time in driving us over this section of the Ellis estate. The new townsite is well laid out, and several large and imposing business buildings have gone up this summer, and others are in course of construction. It is and many people are coming in to take up the fruit lands. On the outskirts of the town are to be noted a number of new, substantial residences, the homes of recent settlers. The irrigation work has already assumed substantial proportions, and large gangs of men are at work in the construction of flumes and ditches. Mr. C. R. Townley, well known on the Coast, is the obliging representative of the C. P. R. at this point.

"Accompanied by Price Ellison, M. P. P., the trip up Okanagan Lake by the steamer Aberdeen was made most agreeable. Short stops were made at Summerland, Peachland and Kelowna. These Okanagan Lake towns are all building up, especially Kelowna, a healthy youngster in the ranks of incorporated towns. Too much praise cannot be bestowed on Mr. J. M. Robinson for the splendid work he has done for several years in attracting attention to the fruit lands of that section. His wonderful energy and courage has done yeoman service to people what were heretofore looked on as waste places. The two hours' stop enabled us to meet many people, as well as several members of the local Conservative Association, when we were forced to take the train for Enderby, our next stop. At Enderby a sumptuous banquet was given in our honor, among the visitors from other points being Mr. Thomas Taylor and Sir Arthur Stepney. Over 100 people attended, the function being of a non-political character and one characterized by a splendid feeling of good-fellowship between the representatives of the two rival towns of Enderby and Armstrong. The arrangements were in the hands of the following gentlemen, who added much to a most noteworthy and enjoyable evening: Mayor George Bell, George McCormick, A. E. Taylor, F. V. Moffet, D. Nairn, H. W. Harvey, G. Rosoman and B. Gardom.

"From Enderby we proceeded direct to Vancouver, where Mr. Green stopped over. Though a little tired, I can say that I enjoyed heartily every minute of the tour, and in closing I would like to say that both the chief commissioner and myself feel that much good has been accomplished in several matters directly affecting the interior of the province by reason of this personal visit, and that we are both exceedingly grateful to the people of the many towns where we were so hospitably entertained."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND "UNCLE REMUS"

When President Roosevelt visited Atlanta, Ga., recently, he met, among other notable men, Mr. Joel Chandler Harris, the author of the "Uncle Remus" stories now appearing exclusively in THE METROPOLITAN MAGAZINE. Mr. Roosevelt referred in warm terms to the pleasure he had received from the "Uncle Remus" tales, which pleasure, he said, he had shared with all his children

"I am very fond of Uncle Remus. Presidents may come, and Presidents may go, but Uncle Remus stays put. Georgia has done a great many things for the Union, but she has never done more than when she gave Mr. Joel Chandler Harris to American literature."

"The best feature of my visit to Atlanta," continued the President, "was meeting Joel Chandler Harris at a luncheon party. By George, that was great! He is a wonderful man. I regard him as the greatest educator in the South along the lines in which he writes. One of the very pleasant memories of my Southern trip will have been my association with him."

Perhaps the best of the "Uncle Remus" stories appears in the December (Christmas) Number of THE METROPOLITAN MAGAZINE. It is amusingly illustrated by A. B. Frost. There are twenty other features in the same issue, including Twelve Pictures in Color. The Christmas Metropolitan is for sale by all newsdealers and booksellers at

Although betimes his wardrobe he did hock.
'Gainst Irving's jealousy and Booth's ingratitude he strove,
'Till in the one-night stands his treasure trove
Most richly did he find.
His genius Alden Benedick enriched,
And, though Corse Peyton did his business steal,
Yet sothern an unworthiness could feel,
When billed against this Yorick.

So prospered he until one night in Creede—
The ghost had walked to make his fate more sore—
He and his troupe put on their greatest hit,
And in the hall the vulgar mob di dsit,
Until there wa sno room for any more.
The play was Julius Caesar, but revised,
To bring it up to talents of the size
Of this great artist.
No Pompey's Pillar did his props include,
So that a barber-pole he did provide,
By giving to its owner comps to see how died
The noble Julius.
The part of Brutus did our hero play,
And with a gun he did great Caesar slay.
At which the audience rose up en masse
And filled our Yorick full of lead, alas.
Because, forsooth, they said his job was raw,
In that he gave his friend no chance to draw,
And so, upon that barber-pole with Caesar he did fall,
The mightiest tragedian of them all.
He was me friend, so I his story tell.
Alas, poor Yorick! I knew him very well.

"Is Dr. Chase Your Doctor?"

HAVE YOU LEARNED TO CURE BILIOUSNESS, INDIGESTION AND CONSTIPATION WITH

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

A medicine, like a physician, is selected because of the actual results it is known to bring about. Most people are slow in choosing either physician or medicine until they know of cases in which they have proven successful.

In calling your attention to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills it is only necessary to point to their success in the past, for they are known in nearly every home.

By means of their direct and specific action on the liver—causing a healthful flow of bile—they regulate and enliven the action of the bowels and ensure good digestion in the intestines. At the same time, they stimulate the kidneys in their work of filtering poisons from the blood.

The cleansing process set in action by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills means a thorough cure of biliousness, intestinal indigestion, torpid liver, kidney derangements and constipation.

It means a restoration of health, strength and comfort where there has been pain, weakness and suffering. It means a removal of the conditions which lead to backache, rheumatism, lumbago, Bright's disease, appendicitis, and diabetes.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

MEN! STOP

The Weakening of Your Vitality Before it Has Destroyed All Your Happiness and Strength.

Don't allow this weakness to take away all the pleasures of living; don't see yourself losing your nerve force, your manhood, when a cure is at hand. You know that you are growing older and weaker every day, and that unless you cure yourself now you will soon be a wreck. You have pains and aches, dizzy spells, despondency, confusion of ideas, weak back, varicocele, and are growing weaker in every way. Cure yourself now, and enjoy happiness for the rest of your life.

Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt

is a great vitalizer. It will cure you. It will pour vigor into your weak, relaxed glands and restore the full strength of manhood. It will renew your old vim and courage, stop pains, and make you feel like a man among men. You wear it while you sleep and when you get up in the morning you will feel refreshed and full of new life. You will get better day by day, and soon every indication of your trouble will pass away, and you will be cured forever.

A MAN MADE OVER.

Dr. McLaughlin:

Dear Sir—It is a long time since I wrote you, and I am pleased to tell you that I never feel any trouble in my back now. It has done wonderful work on my back. You can't tell how pleased I feel, for I can now work my ten hours a day, and never feel any pain. I think I am stronger now than I ever was, and I have gone up in weight from 150 to 195 pounds. My health is something wonderful. I can truthfully say that I am a new man. I don't think I shall ever be tired of telling everybody what the Belt has done for me. I feel it a favor and consider it my duty to do so. Hoping that you will have great demand for your wonderful Belt (I might say your health restorer, man building Belt), I remain, yours truly, James Chapman, 1205 Seymour St., Vancouver, B. C.

Daily Review Local Markets

A Good Movement in Apples—Turkeys and Geese Still Scarce.

Wholesalers Import Large Quantities of Holiday Edibles—Market Good.

There was little of interest in retail circles yesterday. A small amount of California fruits and nuts came on the market, but prices remained unaffected. This season's dates are in and are quoted at 10c. per lb., loose or in package. There is a good movement in apples. A few turkeys and geese are expected on the market this morning, but they are so few that it is impossible to quote any price. Eggs and butter remain stable at prices quoted in the list, but there is a possibility of the latter taking an upward movement.

Pears are quiet, prices ranging from $1 for cooking, to $1.50 for table use.

Hot house lettuce is unchanged at $1.60 per crate.

WHOLESALE MARKETS.

Consignments of grapes, oranges, tomatoes, lemons, sweet potatoes, and soft-shelled walnuts were received by the commission houses yesterday morning, and business was brisk. There was some little disappointment expressed at the non-receipt of almonds, which, however, will come up on the next boat from San Francisco.

Wholesalers are asking the following prices: Grapes, muscats and black, at $2.15 per crate. There is a noticeable upward tendency in price, as was to be expected now that the season for the California product is about over. Fancy navel oranges are worth $3.75 per box; lemons, $4 to $4.50 per box, and soft-shelled walnuts, the first of the season, 19c. per lb. Sweet potatoes sell at $3.25 per hundred.

The best brands of apples are quoted to the trade at $1 to $1.50 per box. It is a noticeable fact that prices here are far less than in Vancouver. The market is very good at present and the supply steady.

WEAK LUNGS.

Physicians state that they have never failed to gain the results from the use of Angier's Emulsion. It allays irritation and inflammation, cures the cough, heals the sores and makes the lungs sound and strong. It promotes appetite, strengthens the stomach and perfects nutrition.

PERSONAL.

Captain W. T. Sherbourne of the steamer Blackheath, which passed up to Comox yesterday to load bunker coal, is uncle of F. T. Sherbourne of the firm of Smith & Sherbourne, contractors of Victoria and Vancouver. Mr. F. T. Sherbourne missed meeting the vessel en route by fifteen minutes, but has arranged to proceed to Portland, Ore., with his family to greet his uncle, whom he has not seen for fifteen years.

WHEN A SORE WON'T HEAL

Because of its power to heal raw, flaming flesh, to allay the inflammation and stop the dreadful itching, Dr. Chase's Ointment has a world-wide reputation. If you have become discouraged by the failure of other treatments put Dr. Chase's Ointment to the test. Like thousands of others you will be surprised and delighted with the results.

INVESTIGATE

For over a quarter of a century Angler's Emulsion has been the remedy of physicians. It has always given satisfactory and beneficial results. It has never disappointed. It will do the same for you. If you are suffering from hoarseness, throat irritation or weakness, cough, bronchitis, weak lungs or consumption, try it.

Hard Luck.

Two Irishmen, employed in the building of a sky-scraper in lower New York, were rival strong men, and seized every chance to prove superiority in physical prowess. There was a difference of opinion among their fellow laborers as to which was the stronger of the two, and after much discussion Riley bet McGinnis that he could carry him safely to the sixth storey of the building. The bet was accepted, and in the presence of an expectant crowd, Riley began his laborious task. He ascended the ladder safely until he reached the fifth storey, when, to the consternation of the spectators, he was seen to stagger, almost dropping his burden. By a great effort, however, he recovered himself, and finally deposited McGinnis on the sixth floor.

"I've done it, McGinnis!" he exclaimed, triumphantly.

"That yez did, Riley," answered McGinnis, in a disappointed voice; "but I had great hopes whin yez stumbled at the fifth storey."—Harper's Weekly.

Violent Movement In Stock Market

Dealings Yesterdy the Largest During Present Speculation Period.

Restoration of Bank Surplus Assured Position of Money Market.

New York, Nov. 20.—Dealings in stocks today expanded to the largest yet made during the present speculative movements. Violent movements in individual stocks not usually prominent in the trading continued to be a characteristic of the market, and there was plenty of irregularity in the price movement. But the market was so broad that active profit taking went on a good part of the time side by side with the rapid advance and that of other points in the list.

At no time this season has the market looked less professional than it did today, but at no time has the appearance been so highly speculative. The development of a decided movement in any ten quarter was quick to attract a heavy following, but in some cases being on an apparently unlimited scale. The restoration of surplus bank reserves reported in the Saturday bank statement was regarded as assurance of the position of the local money market, and confidence was very generally expressed amongst the speculative element that the money pinch of a week ago worked the passing of the crisis of the autumn money market. However, there were firm discount markets today both in Paris and Berlin. Sterling exchange fell in Paris, and the price of gold was marked up in London. The notice of withdrawal of the government's refunding offer by November 29 was not of any effect. The taking of profits on the day's rise affected the market.

Bonds were firm; total sales, par value, $4,355,000. U. S. bonds were unchanged on call.

Refunding U. S. Bonds

Washington, Nov. 20.—Secretary Shaw today made public the following statement: "The secretary of the treasury hereby gives public notice that the refunding of the United States three per cent. bonds of the loan of 1908-18 and four per cent. bonds of the funded loan of 1907, now proceeding under circular of September 28, 1905, will be discontinued after November 29, 1905. Bonds that were intended for refunding must be forwarded so as to be received at the treasury department not later than November 29."

Union Traction Company

New York, Nov. 20.—The offered purchase of $5,000,000 of capital stock of the United Traction Company of Albany, involving an outlay of $7,500,000, has been made in the interest of the Delaware & Hudson company. Stock may be deposited under the proposed change of interest up to November 28.

A New Japanese Loan

New York, Nov. 20.—Kuhn Loeb & Co. announce that negotiations for a new Japanese loan have been concluded in London and will probably be issued before the end of the month.

SPORTS

New York, Nov. 20.—At the annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States today all the sprinting records of Arthur Duffy, the international champion, were declared void by the Amateur Athletic Union.

President Joseph McCabe, in presenting his annual report, said that the man who deliberately accepted excessive expense money is a professional of the worst type, and the seal of amateur condemnation should be placed upon him forever.

The new board of governors elected includes these representatives of the Metropolitan Association: F. W. Rubien, New York; J. E. Sullivan, New York; Bartow S. Weeks, New York; John F. Dooling, New York; F. L. Gross, Brooklyn.

A resolution was adopted annexinb the James Bay Athletic Association, the Brockton Point Association, and all other British Columbia athletic clubs.

The new board of governors passed resolutions requesting Frank Floyd of Philadelphia to forfeit immediately all prizes won by him under the auspices of the union.

Walter Eckersall, quarter back of the Chicago University football team, who was suspended for having played professional baseball on the Spaulding team of Chicago last summer, asked reinstatement on the ground that he had played for recreation and exercise, and was allowed only his expenses. He was reinstated.

The new officers elected include President Joseph B. McCabe of East Baston, representing the New England association, and secretary-treasurer James E. Sullivan of New York city, representing the Metropolitan association.

LACROSSE.

Executive Meeting

A meeting of the executive committee of the Victoria Lacrosse Club was held in the office of Mr. Thomas Hooper last evening, at which the following members were present: W. W. Bolton, J. G. Brown, J. A. Virtue, C. Marston, W. Spencer, and G. A. Coldwell. It was decided that the semi-annual meeting of the club should be held on December 14, provided the use of the Y. M. C. A. rooms may be secured. This meeting has been somewhat delayed over the fact that the medals and cups were not ready for presentation. It is expected, however, that everything will be ready by that date. At this meeting the secretary and treasurer will present provisional statements of the standing of the club. Subscriptions for the reduction of the debt are coming in very encouragingly, and the committee expect in a short time to have all the indebtedness wiped off.

FOOTBALL.

Elect Officers

A well attended meeting of the Central Intermediate Football Club was held last evening, when the following officers were elected: President, Mr. Gillis; vice-president, Ald. Goodacre; captain, G. Morley; vice-captain, H. Sargison; secretary-treasurer, B. McInnes; committee, H. Cobbett, J. O'Keefe, C. Kinlock and A. Clegg.

It was decided that the club colors would be all white. Although the club is only newly organized, it is expected that they will be able to present a very strong line up for their first game of the season on Saturday, when they meet the North Ward team.

Association in the East

From exchanges which have arrived lately from the Eastern provinces, it is learned that it is not only the American colleges which have taken up the Association football game, but the Canadian colleges as well. McGill has taken up the game with great interest, and recently sent a team on a tour of the nearby cities. In a recent issue of the Montreal Star an account of a game of Association football ended with the following piece of poetry, which will prove interesting to the local players:

Socker Football

The gore that once upon the "grid"
Its carmine mantle spread,
The broken bones, the dying groans,
The mangled, maimed and dead,
The basketfuls of missing ears,
Of noses, taumbs and toes,
The basketfuls of missing cars,
The clash of savage foes,
All ,all shall vanish from the field
As vanish mists away,
A brighter, fairer day has dawned,
The teams are going to play—
"Socker."

No more the angulshed shrieks shall rend
The circumambient air,
Nor students grow umbrageous crops
Of skull-protecting hair.
Let "pugs" delight to scrap and fight,
Perchance their brows are low;
Let brutal wrestlers hug and bit,
For nature made them so;
But college boys should never yearn
To fight like dogs and cats,
Their little feet were never made
To kick each other's slats—
Play "Socker."

But what is "Socker," do you ask?
Well, gentle reader, I
Will tell you what and how and which,
Though I cannot tell why,
It is a fair and gentle joust
As you might wish to play;
You do not seem to maim or mar,
To mangle or to slay.
You merely chase the bounding ball
And run to beat the band,
And when you overtake the sphere
You alse your tootsie, and Sock'er.

Now all acclaim "Long live the game!"
And "Socker," long live it.
We'll blithely chase the bounding ball
And not be rude a bit;
We'll never gouge our foeman's eye,
Nor jump upon his "tam,"
Nor seek to use his shell-like ear
In lieu of chewing gum.
We'll never, never bend his face,
Nor roughly pull and haul,
For though there be some gentle kicks,
The pigskin gets them all—
In "Socker."

To the Sporting Editor:

Sir—As there appears to be some divergence of opinion in the matter of charging for the admission of ladies to witness football matches played on the Oak Bay ground, may I solicit the favor of an authoritative answer in this matter through the columns of your esteemed journal?

On the last occasion I went there with two ladies. I was informed at the ticket office that no admission charge was made, but on presenting myself at the entrance to the ground, tickets for m ylady friends were demanded.

I have made several inquiries with a view to obtaining correct information in this matter, and in the majority of cases was informed that ladies were admitted free. But one gentleman who, I believe, has an interest in the grounds, informed me that ladies must be paid for on holidays and Saturdays.

Might I suggest, to avoid future misunderstanding, that an official announcement be made on this subject?

Perhaps were I to ask that at any rate the wives and families of the troops in garrison should be admitted free, it would not be thought too much ,in view of the fact that all spectators have free entry to the barracks to see matches played there.

GEO. FENTON.

Work Point, November 20.

[At present it is the custom to charge admission for ladies. The matter is, however, being discussed by the Oak Bay Park Association.—Sporting Editor.]

Collie Club Meeting

A meeting of the British Columbia Collie Club will be held tomorrow evening at the Direct Tea Importing Company store, corner of Douglas and Johnson streets. The meeting will be called at 8 o'clock, and a full attendance is requested. The principal business will be the election of officers for the ensuing year.

BILLIARDS.

A return match between the sergeants of the Royal Garrison Artillery and a team from the Driard will be played on the table at the hotel tomorrow evening. As will be remembered, the last tournament resulted in a win for the Royal Artillery, and the local players will make a determined effort to turn the tables tomorrow evening.

SOME GINGER TEA

Is considered a good thing to break up a chill, but something much more certain is a teaspoonful of Nerviline taken in hot water. Nerviline sends glowing warmth tingling all through the body, makes you feel good at once. Nothing so good for colds, coughs, chest pains and chills. Get a 25c bottle of Polson's Nerviline today.

DO YOU HICCOUGH?

Pretty disagreeable complaint, isn't it? Why don't you take a few drops of Nerviline occasionally and get cured—it never fails. Polson's Nerviline is a perfect treasure for folks bothered with hiccoughs and stomach gas. Nothing better is made than Nerviline; get a 25c bottle today; permanent cure is guaranteed.

ENORMOUS RAILWAY DEVELOPMENT.

The following is an approximate detailed statement of the extensions now undertaken which have to be completed in from three to five years from date. Grading contracts have already been let covering about 75 per cent of the total mileage of 7,240 miles, and the remainder will be put under contract so soon as surveys are completed.

The standard 80-lb. rail will be put down on these roads, and it is estimated that a total approximating 1,200,000 tons will be needed for this work during the next four years together with 400,000 tons of small sections for car and locomotive building, switches, trestles and bridges. The cost of equiping lines when built is placed at $75,000,000, which, with the cost of road construction, makes a grand total of over $250,000,000. During the coming year Canadian railways will require over 100,000 tons of bridge material for renewing and strengthening bridges. The requirements of the Grand Trunk railway alone for this purpose will amount to 30,000 tons.

The trade and navigation returns, covering the fiscal year ended June 30, show the extent of the importations of small steel which has to be brought in in the face of a duty of from $7 to $10 per ton. The imports for the year of bar iron and steel, comprising only rounds, squares and flats, amounted to 32,375 tons, valued at $1,024,256, on which duties amounting to $202,634 were exacted. Fish plates were brought in to the extent of 7,000 tons under a duty of $8 per ton, the value of the goods being $202,246. There are several smale plate mills in Canada manufacturing butt-welded pipe up to two inches in diameter. All the skelp for this industry is imported to the amount of 19,147 tons, valued at $557,944. Railroad spikes pay a duty of $10 per ton, and nearly 25,000 tons came from abroad, costing $97,221, with duties amounting to $24,839.

Canada has no tin-plate industry as yet, though several projects to establish this branch of manufacture have been set on foot. Last year the importations in this line amounted, roughly speaking, to 250,000 boxes, including black plate produced at a tin-plate mill, valued at $2,879,600. To supply this demand here would require a 20-mill plant and give employment to 2,000 men.

These considerations, coupled with the certainty of a vastly increased market as the result of railway construction, the rapid settlement of the West and the general industrial expansion are bringing the tariff question prominently to the front, and if conditions remain unchanged, the next few years will see a very large proportion of the money so lavishly expended on railroad and other construction work sent out of the country for the purchase of materials.

WANTED—INSTRUCTION IN THE THREE R's.

A Parent's Plea

My little boy is eight years old,
He goes to school each day ;
He doesn't mind the tasks they set—
They seem to him but play.
He heads his class a raffi work,
And also takes the lead
At making dinky paper boats—
—ut I wish that he could read.

They teach him physiology,
And, O, it chills our hearts
To hear our prattling innocent
Mix up his inward parts.
He also learns astronomy
And names the stars by night—
Of course, he's very up-to-date,
But I wish that he could write.

They teach him things botanical,
Tehy teach him how to draw,
He babies of mythology
And gravitation's law ;
And the discoveries of science
With him are quite a fad,
They tell me he's a clever boy,
But I wish that he could add.
—P. McArthur, in the Free Press.

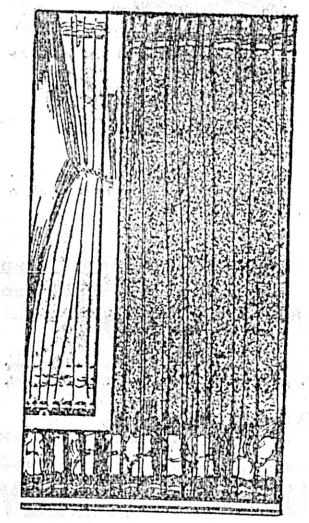
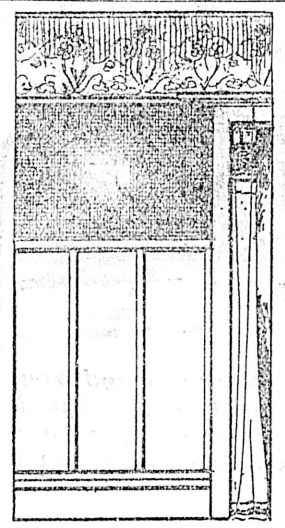
UNIQUE WALL DECORATIONS

The methods of treating walls in other materials than printed papers are numerous indeed, and there is a great variety of choice in burlaps, papier-mache, tile, wainscoting, fabrics in different arrangements, real and imitation wall leather, stenciling, tempera ornamentation by hand, panel arrangements from Japanese sources, designs in hardwood inlay, as in the Austrian Secession. These materials are, many of them, used in conjunction with the popular "landscape" friezes in paper, some of which are now being made with a repeat of pattern at no less a distance than seventy-two feet. Therefore, the prospective decoration of a room in unique style gives not only the choice of unique material, but also the use of rrieze designs which are for all purposes absolutely continuous and with all the variety that attaches to a handpainted frieze design. The innumerable varietions possible in combinations of materials of so diverse a character as we mention will make it quite beyond the scope of this article to give more than a very few examples. These, as specimen arrangements, will suggest other methods of treating the material used in the examples, or the use of other materials in the same manner as we outline here. Each example is replete with suggestion.



Above we show a somewhat conventional side-wall in a style usually consisting of gilt molding and pale tinted papers. We would suggest brown oak against tapestry—that is, a stronger combination of color than usual, and in contrasting shades.



The paneled wall adjoining is in lincrusta-walton, a fireproof embossed wall covering which takes paint. Above this is a fabric pattern wall-paper with tapestry effect, a tapestry, or a burlap in stenciled pattern. This combination is surmounted by a simple frieze which reaches the ceiling and runs uninterruptedly all around the room. Pictures that are hung in this room are supposed to be confined to the tapestry effect section of the wall decoration, but minor unframed prints, such as passepartout photographs, may be placed irregularly in the sunken panels of the lower wall section.

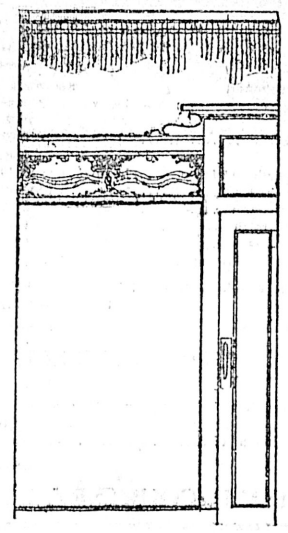
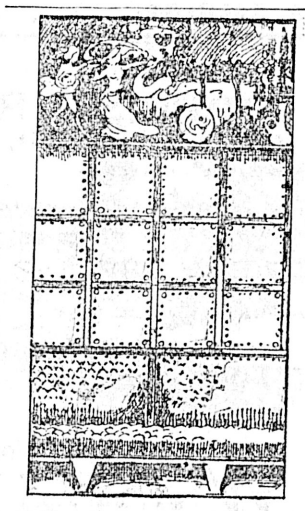
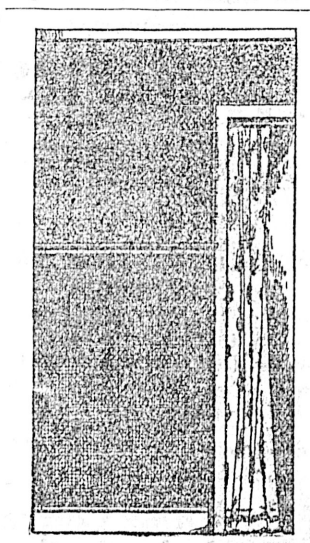
The third design shows the possibilities of the "draped" wall hung with 50-inch patterned fabric. The material is hung from a concealed brass rod at the junction of the wall and ceiling. The box-pleated fashion of hanging is used to conceal the seams in the fabric, which are turned under, towards the concealed wall behind the hanging.



The popularity of burlap, which is simple, not of great cost, and easy to handle gives opportunity for stencil treatment in the manner we show here. The simple stencil design at the photograph rail is done on burlap, with a lighter tone of plain fabric for a frieze. At the junction of wall and ceiling the stencil design is repeated as a margin to the ceiling, which is white. A treatment in white woodtrims as a background for dark blue burlap and light blue burlap frieze makes an excellent color scheme in such a case as is represented by the simple wall. The stencil decoration might be in aluminum paint.



It is not always the smoothly finished wall that gives the best results, decoratively. Here is a dado in tapestry paper, with a plain plate-rail in dark stained wood. Above the plate-rail the wall is pebbled, and the rough-surfaced frieze section is defined at the ceiling by a similar band of stained wood to match the plate-rail. As suggested in the illustration the picture space in this wall is confined to the pebbled plaster surface, and the picture hooks depend from the dark wood band running around the room at the ceiling.



The last design in the series suggests the use of leather as a material for wall covering. Behind the upholstered wall seat, the leather is applied flat to the bare wall, a grillework frame in stained oak is added, and the visible squares of leather are outlined in brass headed nails. A plate-rail or stein rack surmounts the top of the leather-covered section of the wall, and a landscape frieze of generous width reaches the ceiling, which is beamed in the fashion of the grille work on the wall beneath.—Interior Decoration, N. An enthusiastic audience witnessed the Watson Stock Company's first performance of "New England Folks" at the Watson theatre last night. There are three acts to the play, and it is one of the prettiest comedy dramas ever presented in Victoria. There will be a matinee tomorrow. Starting Thursday night, a new dramatization of Quida's celebrated novel, "Under Two Flags," will be given and a production of far more than ordinary merit is promised.

Pastoral Letter To Canadians

House of Bishops at a Recent Session at Quebec Issued an Epistle

To the Clergy and to the Laity of The Church of England.

At the meeting of the general Synod of the Church of England in the Dominion of Canada, held in Quebec in September, 1905, th Archbishops and Bishops of the upper house issued the following pastoral letter and ordered it to be read by all the clergy to their congregations from the Atlantic to the Pacific. It was accordingly read in all the English churches of Victoria and British Columbia, on Sunday, Nov. 19th:

To the Clergy and Laity of the Church of England in Canada:

In the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost.

Three years have passed since we last addressed you, brethren beloved, on the duties and responsibilitines of our common life as servants of the Lord Jesus Christ, and memories of His Church. And now once more we, as your Bishops, conscious of the weight of responsibility which rests on us, and which time can never lessen, address you after the close of a most important gathering of the whole Canadian Church in general synod assembled, composed of all the bishops and chosen representatives, both clerical and lay, of the Dominion. Surely the whole church may pray that the foremost result of such a gathering may be that bishops, clergy and laity may pass to the more ordinary work of their common duties, filled with an earnest desire to "live the life" which wherever lived will bring glory to our Lord and Master, Jesus Christ. And God knows we need all the divine power, that the united faith of bishops, clergy and laity can bring, through Christ, into the life of this land. Never was land more blest, never had any country more to be grateful for, and yet how terribly thoughtless it is at times of God. We must awake, awake for our own qeople, awake for our own loved Church of England, and not for pride or glory's sake, or for supremacy, but for Christ's sake, win our portion in this promised land, and win it for the Lord we serve.

The Need of Godly Example.

Christian brethren of the laity whom these words may reach in distant places, we desire you to realize more fuly than ever you have done, the individual power you possess through the example of your daily life, and to use that power for the glory of our Saviour. At a time when that great influence called "society" seems steadily drifting towards God-forgetfulness and irreligion, when the solemnity of the Lord's day is degraded through the frivolity of fashion, when a spiritual, yet bold profession of religion is often regarded as vulgarity, when with many it is fashionable to leave God's house unfrequented and the ordinances of religion unused, when money is poured out lavishly on luxury and soft, enervating living, and paltry sums at times given by the rich to the things of God, at such a time, the voice of every godly man and woman should be raised in the interest of all that is "pure and of good report;" and the worth of personal example should be realized as all important in the home, in the area of childhood, and in the busy haunts of busy men. Better, far better, the sober strictness at which the fashionable world may mock, than the offering of hrist's will, and our responsible manhood or womanhood, on the altar of a godless, frivolous and wholly irresponsible, fashionable world.

Marriage and Divorce.

And hence is it that we, your fathers in God, would call upon the christian force and integrity of the faithful to support us in the step which the general synod has taken in positively forbidding any clergyman of the Church of England in Canada "to solemnize a marriage between persons, either of whom shall have been divorced from one who is living at the time." The synod has been led to take this momentous step, in the highest interests of social life, and the protection of home. It is certainly true that such a canon cannot, at times, be put into action without a measure of suffering on the part of those who have not sinned, but we would have you to realize, brethren beloved, that such suffering is not confined to the question of the sundering of the marriage tie. Few who have attained the higher life have done so apart from almost countless acts of self-surrender, and willing bearing of that against which the flesh rebels; the road of God's will is often a road of suffering, those who will wear the dazling robes of victors at the last "will have come out of great tribulation," and the highest type of the consecrated christian life is that which "beareth all things, endureth all things." The synod has done what in God's sight it believes is right, and we, your fathers, thank God that it arrived at a conclusion that though it may entail suffering on the few, is certainly conceived in the interest of the many.

Observance of the Lord's Day.

For the further preservation of the purity and sweetness of christian life, we would urge on all who "love the Lord Jesus" to leave nothing undone, by voice, by influence, by example to, preserve the sacredness of the Lord's Day. One dreads to think what the fashionable mode of regarding and using that day may lead to, and we warn the Christian manhood and womanhood of the church that where fashion is allowed to usurp the throne of Christ, where the day is used for excited pleasure, and wholly divorced from worship, the divine object of the day is lost, and Christ is dishonored where above all He should be glorified. And if our united voices could reach those whose example is so deleterious to the best interests of the people, we would ask them to realize that their responsibility is as real a thing today as it will be to them and for us when we stand at the last in the presetce of God.

In sonnection with this subject we would commend to the church the work of the Lord's Day Alliance of Canada. Its object is largely identical with ours, and its field is the Dominion. We would welcome and aid any godly effort of this description and knowing the devoted earnestness displayed by the Alliance in this respect, we pray God's blessing to rest upon its labors.

Candidates for the Sacred Ministry.

Furthermore, brethren, we would plead with the rising christian manhood of the church and bring before that all important body the claims which the ministry of God's church has in all places upon it, but more especially in this country "where the fields are white to harvest and the laborers are few." We are well aware that we cannot compete with the world, in the inducements which it holds out to rally the young life of Canada around its business and commercial enterprises—we would not complete if we could, for we feel assured that no ministry can prove inself a "Ministry of worth" where such sordid calculations lie at its base. But our appeal is to the young christian manhood, or even advancing boyhood of the church from an earnest desire to bring Christ and His church before them at that moment when the decision has to be made as to their life's work, and we would claim for the work of Christ a loving and careful consideration. We can assure the young, with long years of life behind many of us, as we give the assurance, that the call of Christ is above every call that earth can give, and that the Master's payment to His faithful servants is beyond all price.

Authorized Rendering of Divine Service

We have observed with concern the growing tendency to shorten and set aside the established order of church services on the Lord's Day without due authority. Also to introduce into the service musical selections unauthorized and unedifying, such as the substitution for the offertory sentences of anthem solos; the omission of a sermon after evensong; and the use in its place of a cantata or sacred melody; the employment of elaborate services instead of plain chants and responses, to the exclusion of the congregation from their rightful participation in divine worship.

Special Seasons of Prayer.

Considering the undoubted fact that untold blessing has arisen in response to the special prayers, that God's people have offered on St. Andrew's Day, the special Day of Intercession, and at other seasons, we would most earnestly press upon the clergy to take care to give their people special opportunities of prayer and praise each year, and we would also call upon the faithful laity everywhere to listen to the call of their clergy and gladly to unite in these special devotions.

Missionary Society of the Church of England in Canada.

As bishops of the church we have but one mind as to the need of urging all to support with devoted liberality our own Canadian Missionary Society. We thank God for the onward spirit of the society itself, for its increasing income, and for the great good it has accomplished within the short period of three years. Nevertheless we know that what we have done is by no means the measure of the church's power. Nor can we expect, even approximately, to reach that measure until every clergyman becomes the willing and earnest advocate of the work of the society, instead of, as too often happens, remaining a mere machine to convey to congregations the desire of the society to enlist their sympathy. If all the clergy were as earnest in this matter, as thank God so many are, we would have no trouble in meeting, indeed more than meeting, our diocesan appointments and we cannot fail to realize that where such cold, mechanical methods are pursued, the responsibility of diocesan failure rests on those whose lack of personal effort impedes the church of God in its earnest effort to fulfill the Master's will.

Words of Warning.

It is our desire, based on duty toward God and our people, to warn all against that godless spirit which seeks to regulate at will the result of marriage, and largely to banish childhood from the home. We care not to linger on such a subject, but we would warn the thoughtless, as well as those who cannot be called so, that there are deadly moral and social crimes, as well as those against the laws of king and country, and that foremost among such moral crimes is that which, rushing against the laws of God and nature, will surely bring upon the criminals, in some way, physically and spiritually, the just judgment of an offended God.

We have sought, brethren, in these words, to lead you with ourselves, at least in thought, into the very presence of God, for christian duty and christian responsibility realized and sought to be fulfilled, must ever bring us close to Him, "whose we are and whom we ought to serve." To us the synod has been a great joy and source of thankfulness, for whilst minds have differed, all have been united in bowing before the church's voice, when its decisions have been clearly given. This unity of spirit surely is from God, this brotherhood is His gift, this freedom from strife and rancour in His blessing. To Him be all praise and glory. Amen

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW

Thousands of women suffer untold miseries every day with aching backs that really have no business to ache. A woman's back wasn't made to ache. Under ordinary conditions it ought to be strong and ready to help her bear the burdens of life.

It is hard to do housework with an aching back. Hours of misery at leisure or at work. If women only knew the cause. Backache comes from sick kidneys, and what a lot of trouble sick kidneys cause in the world.

But they can't help it. If more work is put on them than they can stand it's not to be wondered that they get out of order. Backache is simply their cry for help.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

will help you. They're helping sick, overworked kidneys—all over the world—making them strong, healthy and vigorous. Mrs. P. Ryan, Douglas, Ont., writes: "For over five months I was troubled with lame back and was unable to move without help. I tried all kinds of plasters and liniments but they were no use. At last I heard tell of Doan's Kidney Pills and after I had used three-quarters of the box my back was as strong and well as ever."

Price 50 cents per box or three boxes for $1.25, all dealers or The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

CONSUMPTION.

With the aid of proper living Angier's Emulsion will cure consumption in the earlier stages and give the greatest possible relief in the later stages. It relieves the expectoration, removes the pain from the chest, reduces the fever, makes breathing easy, allays the night-sweats and checks diarrhoea. It induces an increase of weight and strength.

LONDON'S PAUPERISM.

London Mail.

The following article is the first result of a serious, straightforward, unsentimental enquiry by our special correspondent, Mr. F. A. McKenzie. His sympathy with the poor and suffering is unquestionable, for his pen has often been employed in their cause, and in former years he has, as is well known, acted on behalf of the Daily Mail as the organizer and distributor of the charity of our readers.

This first article does not make pleasant reading, but we have Mr. McKenzie's emphatic assurance that it is written after the most careful and searching personal inquiries, and that he can neverreHH shrdl hrh hr hdl he can answer personally for every statement it contains. Hasty readers are warned to observe that it refers to one district only, and that the results of his inquiries concerning other districts, which we sincerely hope may be more encouraging, will be contained in further articles which will be published from day to day.

Debauched by Charity.

Half-past eleven on Friday morning in a back street in the most poverty-stricken and most largely relieved district in Canning Town. A group of women wait around the gates of a chapel, from which doles are being issued. Dirty, ragged and untidy, they certainly are, but hungr-stricken? No! Their children playing in the roadway nearby are ill-clad, filthy and in many cases barefooted, and do show signs of under-feeding, but not the mothers.

These are the wives of the habitual unemployed seeking relief.

The curious stranger notices that some of the women go from the relief station to the public houses. Let us look inside a few of these establishments. In a side bar of the first place we enter we find eleve nwomen, exactly of the same type as those soliciting charity without. One of them carries a recently born baby in her arms, and another has a little girl two years old clinging to her apron. Each woman has a glass in front of her. Some of them have been here since half-past nine in the morning, and will stay for hours yet. In the next drinking shop is a party of nine, in the next but two, while in the last of all we find seven. Now one rises to go out, for her hour has come to beg for aid from school or parson or unemployed fund.

An hour later we can see the husbands of these women amusing themselves at the street corner higher up. Five bookmakers' touts are busy among them at one cross roads alone.

At this time, when we are threatened with a new unemployed agitation, it is well that the causes of much of the distress in some of the unemployed areas should be understood. For several years the public has tried to deal with the sufferings of the very poor by sentimental means. In Canning Town, in particular, each winter has brought increase of relief, and each increase of relief has helped to render more permanent the problem it has set about to cure.

The Causes of Evil.

We have now, in this one district, a large number of people, totalling many thousands, incapable of regular work and unwilling to attempt it. They have been taught to lean on charity to aid them, and they have proved themselves apt pupils. Their homes will, as a rule, for sheer uncleanliness, bear comparison with the dwelling of an Australian aborigine. Their children are systematically made untidy and given a neglected air, in order more successfully to exort outside aid. Parental love is so dead that, in very many cases the mothers will sell the boots given to their children in order to buy gin.

This is no vague, general charge. Three years ago the readers of the Daily Mail entrusted me with a sum of money to spend on meals, and shoes for needy children in this district. Teachers from many schools assured me that such effort would be wasted. "Buy the shoes and give them to the children today," they said, "and tomorrow the shoes will be in the pawnshops, and the mothers will have drunk the proceeds." It was necessary for us to construct a careful system of guard checks to save the children from their own mothers.

Last year four separate general funds were distributing doles and aid among these people. A fund for the children, the best of all, kept them fro mstarvation. Two outside agencies collected many thousands of pounds and scattered them about. The West Ham Corporation spent over £26,000 on relief works. What has been the result? The first outcome was to draw to this district many of the loafers from other parts, who saw the chance to obtain something for nothing. The more money that came, the more the number of unemployed grew.

Now the second effect is here. In rormer years the annual unemployed agitation has started about October. This season it began in August. There e been unemployed proceedings has have been unemployed processions now for weeks, with all the added dressings of agitation, marches of unwashed and slouching men, threats of violence, appeals to pity, and demonstrations against the authorities. A register of about 5,000 names of those who claim to be out of work has been got together. Finally, the mayor has issued an appeal for outside funds to aid in the development of schemes unler the Unemployed Workmen's Act.

All this time the condition of employment in West Ham has, on the whole, been rather better than usual. The corporation, which is one of the largest employers of labor, has for months had between 200 and 300 more men in its service, than a years ago. The largest firm in the district, employing about 3,000 hands, has about 10 per cent. more engaged than last year. Another very large firm reports a 16 per cent. increase in its wages bills. The West Ham Gas company has a 5 per cent. increase. The docks in the district—this does not apply to the docks for all London—are about the same. The one main adverse factor is the Thames Ironworks, which, now that the warship, the Black Prince, is nearing completion, are slackening off. The second adverse fastor is the closing of the jute mills some months ago.

Misdirected Sympathy.

There is without question, an amount of perfectly genuine distress in West Ham, distress that should be relieved. Thi sdistress has been augmented by the incoming of many ment discharged from Woolwich Arsenti. But it is not, as a rule, found in the "unemployed" processions. The men who are making the most noise could not work properly if they would, and would not if thew could.

This is hard saying. Some facts may help prove it shrt2fll is shrdl rahtshe help to prove it. Many employers of labor around the docks agree in testifying that their difficulty is to induce casual men to remain long at their work. A man will take on a job for a couple of hours an dthen ask for his 1s 2d (7d an hour) and go. "Look here, guv'nor, I've had enough of this,' he exclaims, with perfect truthfulness. He has secured enough to see him through the day—why should he trouble after more?

The laborer of the casual, loafing type, who works for two days a week, thinks that he has done all his duty. His work is worth comparatively little when it is done. The municipal relief works last winter spent £14,000 on material and £12,000 on labor. On the most liberal estimate, the labor value obtained was worth not more than £4,500, and the tasks would have been done by any contractor for that amount. Many whose names were down on the Unemployed Register refused work when offered to them.

Last winter the workhouse authorities began to distribute relief on a more liberal scale. A number of distressed cases were taken in, without labor. The number increased until it reached 473. Then the guardians resolved to re-establish the labor test, and to make the applicants do some work for the aid they had. The numbers at once fell to 119.

The people have been taught to look upon the outside public as milch cow, and the guardians and municipal authorities as officials from whom everything possible is to be extorted. The members of an "unofficial" relief committee invited me last week to one of their meetings. A bloated woman came asking them for aid. They gave her a small dole, with repeated injunctions that she was to lie to the relieving officer if he asked her if sh ehad had anything. "Take care that your fire is out and your cupboard is bare when the relieving officer comes," one member added.

Here, then is the problem to be solved. A great army of habitual loafers and incapables live off the woes of the genuine unemployed. The latter too often suffer in silence. The spongers, hardened by long experience, adepts in every trick to impress a generous public, ply their calling more boldly each year. How can they be checkmated, and how can the industrious poor—deserving subjects for generous aid—be helped? We have passed the day when men were content to provide "bread and circuses" to hush the shouts of discontent. What is to take their place?

WOMEN WHO CHARM

HEALTH IS THE FIRST ESSENTIAL

It Helps Women to Win and Hold Men's Admiration, Respect and Love

Woman's greatest gift is the power to inspire admiration, respect, and love. There is a beauty in health which is more attractive to men than mere regularity of feature.

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, should be a woman's constant study. At the first indication of ill-health, painful or irregular menstruation, headache or backache, secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begin its use.

Mrs. T. E. Gillis, Windsor, N. S., describes her illness and cures, in the following letter:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"When I commenced to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was suffering with weakness and womb trouble, headaches, backaches, and that worn-out, tired feeling. I have only taken the Vegetable Compound a few short weeks, and it has made me well, strong and robust. I believe that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is without equal for female troubles."

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, backache, bloating (or flatulence), leucorrhœa, falling, inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, or nervous prostration may be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Surely you cannot wish to remain sick, weak and discouraged, when you might so easily be cured. The medicine which has made so many other women well will cure you also.

Use Lever's Dry Soap (a powder) to wash woolens and flannels,—you'll like it. 32

Exciting Voyage Of the Carlisle

Left Vladivostok For Port Arthur Last December and Has Contraband Still.

Travancore Arrives—New French Line—Reidar Chartered For Coal.

Enquiry made with the object of chartering the British steamer Carlisle, now in harbor at Saigon, Cochin, China, has brought to light an interesting story regarding the dilemma in which the vessel is now placed. The Carlisle is one of the contrabandist steamers which ran the blockade of the Japanese off Port Arthur twice with a cargo of guns and ammunition valued at $4,500,000, but failed to land the cargo. The war is over and the cargo is still on board the Carlisle and likely to remain there until twelve months time charter money is paid.

The Carlisle, 1363 tons, with Capt. Jessen, in command, left Vladivostock in December of last year with a cargo of guns and ammunition taken from the Vladivostock defences to strengthen the then beleaguered fortress of Port Arthur if they could be run through the cordon of Japanese warships which held the sea off the fortress while Nogi's forces were boring beneath the cemented ramps of the 41 linked forts.

Capt. Jessen was successful in steaming south through the Sea of Japan, and passing the Straits of Tsushima, but when he arrived off Port Arthur he found that Togo had departed and the Rising Sun flag flew over the fallen fortress. The Carlisle was immediately put about and steamed to the open Pacific to avoid capture. She was steaming without a goal when her propellor was lost; a flaw in the tail shaft had resulted in a crack and the steamer was as helpless as a drift log with four and a half million dollars' worth of war munitions in her hold, and Japanese cruisers seeking her.

Jury rig was made on the small masts and an arduous voyage to the Philippines, two thousand miles away, was commenced. In April, four months the Gulf of Pechili, the derelict drifted There was some revolver and rifle practice into San Miguel bay and dropped anchor in the southern port of the Philippines. While her mates went to the nearest telegraph station to inform her owners and the Russian government of her predicament, a number of Japanese fishermen learned of the nature of the Carlisle's cargo and attacked the steamer, seeking to scuttle her. Captain Jessen secured the assistance of a number of customs officials of the United States service and some of the Philippine constabulary and he managed to beat off the attack of the fishermen who came off in sampans to attack the freighter. There was some revelver and rifle practice in the night some scalding water thrown from several lines of hose, to beat off the intrepid fishermen, who yearned to serve their nation by destroying the Russian guns and ammunition.

Because of the attacks of the Japanese the United States authorities at Manila sent a cruiser of the island squadron to San Miguel bay and the derelict was conveyed to Manila, where she was held. Captain Jessen went ashore and arranged for the necessary repairs, keeping nets spread about his vessel and watchmen ever alert. He was apprehensive of further attacks of patriots, and, in the meantime, a new propellor was made and fitted. The steamer lay at anchor in Manila bay and the war dragged its course,

Then Captain Jessen read in a Manila newspaper that Admiral Rejestvensky had eluded the waiting Japanese and passed through the Straits of Malacca in view of the people of Singapore with his fleet from the Batic. The next night the Carlisle with lights doused steamed quietly past Cavite into the open sea. Her departure was a mystery to the Manila newspapers. The waterfront people had seen the steamer the night before and in the morning she was gone.

Captain Jessen had gone to seek the Baltic fleet, but he failed to find them. He did not know that the Russian ships lingered at Kamranh Bay, while all Japan glared at French, and the Carlisle sailed the China seas, risking capture by the Japanese warships in those waters, and then she headed for Saigon.

There the matter rests. The months have gone by and the Carlisle remained month after month at Saigon with a valuable cargo of war munitions in her hold. She was at Saigon in May and was there when the last mail left the French port in China. Meanwhile the bill for demurrage is piling up, but as long as the cargo remains on board the owners have all the security necessary to see that their claim is met. Otherwise they may have guns and ammunition enough to stock a fortress.

On arrival at Saigon, Captain Jessen telegraphed to the Russian government at St. Petersburg asking what disposition was to be made of the cargo of munitions. The battle of Tsushima was fought meanwhile and the Russian admiralty had lost all interest in war munitions; Kuropatkin had been decisively defeated at Mukden and Rojestvensky at Tsushima. The Russian government was then too occupied to send word to Captain Jessen. The owners of the Carlisle, Salvensen and Company of Leith, were queried by cable and they did not want the guns landed. Before that was done they wished the Russian government to settle for the time charter. The Carlisle was on a monthly time charter, and the money had not been paid.

THROWING LIGHT

On the Subject of

HOME DYEING.

Home dyeing is fascinating and money-saving work when Diamond Dyes are used. Home coloring has an attraction for ladies in the ranks of society, and the wonderful results achieved by the Diamond Dyes for women have made them the popular dyes in all parts of the world.

One ten cent package of the Diamond Dyes will do the same work that a steam dyeing establishment charges one dollar for.

All faded and dingy looking dresses, skirts, suits, blouses, jackets, ribbons, stockings, coats, vests and trousers can be recolored in the home and made to look as good as new at a cost of from 10 to 20 cents, when the never-failing Diamond Dyes are used.

It is well to bear in mind that direct money saving can only be guaranteed when Diamond Dyes are used. Have a care that you do not buy the worthless imitations sold by some dealers. Refuse such deceptive dyes if you would avoid trouble and loss of money and temper. Ask for the DIAMOND DYES; refuse all others that may be offered to you.

QUEEN CITY.

West Coast Steamer Returns From a Rough Trip.

Steamer Queen City, Captain Townsend, returned yesterday morning from Quatsino and way ports on the Vancouver Island coast, one day late, having been detained by stormy weather and in loading salt salmon at stations in Barkley Sound. The steamer brought 175 tons of salt salmon from Captain Johnson's fishing station at Toquart, and took the fish to Seattle after discharging her local freight and disembarking her passengers. The salmon is to be shipped to Japan by Kelly, Clark & Company of Seattle, who have during the past few weeks sent tugs and scows to Barkley Sound for shipments of salt fish. The fishermen, all Japanese, have ceased operations for the season and returned to Victoria by the Queen City.

News was brought from Quatsino by the steamer that further prospecting on the west arm of Quatsino Sound had resulted in the discovery of further locations of hematite and hog iron, and eleven additional claims have been staked. The finds resulted after investigation of the land uprooted by fallen trees. Albert Lund, a timber cruiser of Quatsino, was the discoverer. When he told of his discovery, prospectors hurried to the scene and locations were made over a space of 1,600 acres. On the June group, one of the mines being developed at Quatsino, a tunnel of 100 feet has been run to tap a showing above. An Indian, who shot four elk, and dried the meat for the winter, has been arrested by Constable Leeson for infracting the game act

The Queen City brought no news of the overdue sealing schooner Fawn.

OVERDUE ARRIVES.

British Ship Travencore Reached Port Yesterday.

The British ship Travancore, 1878 tons, which left Hongkong on September 4 for Royal Roads, arrived yesterday in tow of the tug Tyee, and 45 per cent. reinsurance was paid on the vessel, for whose safety fears had been entertained by the underwriters. The Travancore, which was towed to the Sound by the United States tug, was ashore in the early summer near Hongkong. She left the China port for Royal Roads in command of Capt. Smith, and a few days out went ashore. Charges were made against the captain because of his actions when the vessel stranded and his certificate was suspended for six months at the court of inquiry held at Hongkong. Capt. Harges was then given command and he brought the overdue ship to Puget Sound.

RIVERSDALE HERE.

British Ship in From Acapulco—Emily Reed to Load at Chemainu.

The British ship Riversdale, which left Acapulco many days before the bark Australia, which arrived from the same port a few days ago, reached the Royal Roads yesterday in tow of the tug Boyden. The Riversdale, 2,057 tons, Capt. Porter, is 51 days from Acapulco. She is chartered to load at Port Hadlock. Another arrival yesterday was the British ship Emily Reed, 1,466 tons, Capt. Filberr, which arrived at Port Townsend from San Francisco. The Emily Reed is chartered to load lumber at Chemainus and will probably tow to the Vancouver Island port today. The British ship Pass of Brander is fuly due today from Hongkong. She is now 72 days out from the British port in China.

BLACKHEATH FROM JAPAN.

Steam Freighter Arrived Yesterday After Rough Trip.

The steam freighter Blackheath, Capt. James, 2,042 tons, arrived at William Head station yesterday after a rough passage of twenty days from Yokohama. Capt. James reported that the passage across the Pacific was one of the roughest voyages he has made. The steamer proceeded to Comox to load bunker coal, and will then go to Portland to load grain for the Orient. The Blackheath is one of the steamers of the Britain S. S. Co. (Messrs. Watts, Watts & Co.) of London, Eng. The steamer Epsom, of the same line, a new vessel built in 1902 (thirteen years later than the Blackheath), is now en route to Victoria to enter the drydock at Esquimalt to be cleaned and painted. The Epsom is expected to arrive shortly.

SWANHILDA IN STRAITS.

Bark on Which Australian Murderer Escaped.

The British bark Swanhilda, Capt. Macdonald, last reported at Rio de Janeiro, from which port she sailed in August, was reported in the Straits last night towing up, presumably to the Sound. The Swanhilda is the vessel upon which Butler, the Australian murderer escaped to San Francisco, where he was arrested by the San Francisco police when the vessel dropped anchor off Meigg's wharf. He was extradited to Australia and executed.

SHAWMUT IS DUE.

The Boston Steamship Company's Big Freighter Expected.

The steamer Shawmut, Capt. Roberts, is due from Manila via Chinese and Japanese ports. It is probable, though, that the big freighter has been delayed by heavy weather, the steamer Blackheath, which arrived yesterday, having reported heavy weather throughout her voyage from the Japanese coast. The Shawmut is bringing an average cargo, 400 tons being consigned to Victoria merchants. The steamer Athenian is also due this week. The C. P. R. steamer is expected to arrive on Friday from Yokohama. The steamer Aorangi of the Canadian-Australian line is due tomorrow from Australian ports via Suva and Honolulu. She left the latter port on Wednesday last. The Aorangi is bringing, included in a general cargo, 1,200 tons of raw sugar from Suva for the B. C. Sugar Refinery Co. of Vancouver. The steamer Assuan of the Kosmos line arrived at Vancouver on Sunday to land a shipment of raw sugar for the B. C. refinery from Peru.

ANOTHER COLLIER ENGAGED.

Reidar Reported Charteder by the Western Fuel Company.

The Norwegian steamer Reidar, 2,276 tons, Capt. Stanzebye, is reported to have been chartered by the Western Fuel Company to carry coal between Nanaimo and San Francisco. The Reidar is coming from Otaru, Japan, via Taku, the port of North China, at the mouth of Peiho. The Reidar, which was built in 1883, is owned by the Dmpsacties Reidar (Messrs. Lund & Gjertsen of Christiania). She is 240 feet long and 30 feet beam.

NEW FRENCH LINE.

An around the world steamship service has been inaugurated by the Cie Francaise des Chargeurs Reunis, and the first vessel of the line, the Amiral Jaureguiberry, 5,416 tons gross and 3,181 tons net register, will arrive at San Francisco in about ten or twelve days in command of Capt. Benard. Leaving the Orient the steamers will call at San Francisco and at other ports of the west coast of America, north and south, if sufficient inducement offers. Santa Rosalia will probably be made a regular stopping place, as well as two or three South American ports. Thence the vessels will proceed through the Straits of Magellan, calling at Buenos Ayres, and returning to Antwerp and Dunkirk. In addition to the Amiral Jaureguiberry, which will be the first French vessel to come to San Francisco since the Madeline was there about nine years ago, the steamers comprising the line are the Amiral Duperre, Amiral Exelmans, Amiral Fourichon and Amiral Hamelin. The service will be bi-monthly.

TO BUY STEAMERS.

Alaska S. S. Co.'s Officials Leave for New York for This Purpose.

The Seattle Times says: Two large steel steamships for use on Puget Sound may be purchased on the Atlantic coast within the next three weeks by the Alaska Steamship Company. An option on the vessels has been secured by George Lent, supervising engineer of the company, who is now in New York. Walter Oakes, president of the company, left for the east last Thursday night to look over the ships with the view of closing the deal for their immediate purchase.

Charles E. Peabody, vice-president and general manager of the company, recently returned from the east after purchasing the fine steel steamship Indianapolis. Mr. Peabody says that Mr. Oakes will likely take over the two vessels on which the option is held and that they will start for the Pacific coast in December.

While in the East Mr. Peabody looked over the vessels the company is now considering buying, and says that they are among the finest passenger boats running out of New York. They are 1,000 tons ships and would be suitable for Puget Sound or Alaska runs. They are modern in every respect and much larger than the Indianapolis. The two steel vessels have a large carrying capacity as excursion steamships, and will berth about 118 passengers each. The staterooms contain but two berths, which will prevent crowding.

Within the next year it is possible that the Alaska Steamship Company will have between four and five new and modern steamships on the Bellingham, Victoria, Port Townsend and other Puget Sound services.

MARINE NOTES.

With regard to the complaint of the captain of the ship Hugomont that the Carmanah fog horn was not blowing on Thursday last, Lightkeeper Daykin telegraphs a denial. He says there was "steam up" at Carmanah from Tuesday morning to Thursday evening and the fog signal was blown when necessary.

The steamer Otter has gone to Clayoquot with a cargo of lumber for the new sawmill to be built there. The steamer Charmer is supplying her service to New Westminster.

The bark Dunbritton, before reported dismasted, has put back to Leith Roads with her mainmast gone. She was bound from Hamburg to Honolula.

The ocean tug Tatoosh is now at the Rosslyn bunkers undergoing repairs. The deckhouse of the tug was damaged a short time ago while off the Columbia river bar. The tug was attempting to cross in a heavy gale and a sea washed completely over her, smashing the pilot house and otherwise doing some damage.

The bark J. D. Peters has arrived at Seattle, 21 days from San Francisco. Capt. McNaught stated that for ten days he was beating around Flattery, unable to enter. At one time the Peters was heeled over on her beam ends, and was in grave danger of capsizing. The fact that she came up with very little cargo added to her danger. From the time the bark left San Francisco till she arrived in port the voyage was one continual battle with heavy gales.

There are various rumors about the probability of the Pacific Steam Navigation Company resuming business between Valparaiso and intermediate ports and San Francisco, possibly extending to Puget Sound and British Columbia, but these reports cannot be confirmed here. The latest reports come from Liverpool.

The steamer Dolphin will be tied up on her return to Seattle from Skagway eight days hence and converted into an oil-burner.

The bark Everett G. Griggs of Victoria, B. C., formerly the German ship Columbia, which was purchased by local men and renamed Lord Wolseley, is nearing completion at Moran's. Both the lower masts and topmasts have been stepped. The vessel is being converted into a six-masted barkentine.

Capt. Boyce, of the British ship Samoena, died of fever when his vessel lay at Acapulco, and Paul Dinchel, steward, also succumbed to the disease. Mate McKinnell navigated the vessel from Acapulco to the Sound.

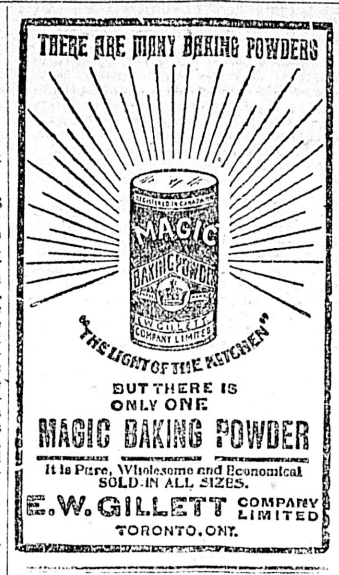
The rival motor boats, the Tillicum of Tacoma and the Union of Seattle, may race from Tacoma to Victoria, negotiations being pending to secure such a race.

The San Francisco & Portland S. S. Co. sought vainly during the past few days to purchase the steamer Alameda from the Pacific Mail Company to replace the lost St. Paul on the Portland-San Francisco route. It is probable that the San Francisco & Portland Co. will build a steamer.

A Dawson despatch says the steamer Monarch, neaped after the water fell following a big jam last week, is caught athwart large pieces of ice and her two ends have sagged in consequence, hogging the centre of the stern wheeler. The steamer is in a critical position and efforts are being made to move her to a safer place.

OBITUARY.

On Sunday afternoon the remains of Kenneth P. Wollaston were laid at rest, the funeral taking place from Christ church cathedral. There was a large attendance of friends, all of whom joined in the impressive services conducted by His Lordship, Bishop Perrin and Rev. Canon Beanlands. The full surplice choir was present, deceased having been a member of that organization for many years. Employees of Turner, Beeton & Co. and members of the James Bay Athletic association attended to pay a last tribute of respect to the memory of their late comrade. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, conveying some idea of the esteem in which the deceased was held by all friends and acquaintances. Among many others there were offerings from Turner, Beeton & Co., the wholesale grocers, the Northwest Association of Commercial Travelers, the United Travelers' Association, the Arion club, friends at Golden, B. C., and the James Bay Athletic association. The pall bearers were: H. and P. Austin, T. Alice, Thos. Walker, H. G. Lawson and J. Virtue.



A HOME MADE HAPPY BY CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY.

About two months ago our baby girl had measles which settled on her lungs and at last resulted in a severe attack of bronchitis. We had two doctors but no relief was obtained. Everybody thought she would die. I went to eight different stores to find a certain remedy which had been recommended to me, and failed to get it, when one of the storekeepers insisted that I try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I did so, and our baby is alive and well today.—Geo. W. Spence, Holly Springs, N. C. There is no better preparation on the market than this remedy for a cough as well as colds, croup and whooping cough. It is especially good for children as it contains nothing injurious and is pleasant to take. For sale by all druggists.

The time used is Pacific standard, for the 120th meridian west. It is counted from 0 to 24 hours, from mianight to midnight. The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water.

The height is measured from the level of the lower low water at spring tides. This level corresponds with the Datum to which the soundings on the Admiralty chart of Victoria harbor are referred, as closely as can now be ascertained.

Esquimalt (at Dry Dock).—From observations during six months, in 1900, compared with simultaneous observations at Victoria. For time of high water add 11 minutes to high water at Victoria. For time of low water, add 17 minutes to low water at Victoria.

COLD KILLS THE GERM.

Lieut. Perry Says There Are No Bald Heads in the Arctic Region.

The people who come back from Klondike testify to the fact that no native bald heads are there. The evidence is that the cold climate kills the germs that eat the hair off at the root. Lieut. Perry, who went to the Arctic Regions, gives the same evidence. Newbro's Herpicide has the same effect as the cold climate. Herpicide is the first hair remedy built upon the principle of destroying the germ that eats the hair off. Its phenomenal sale demonstrates the correctness of the scalp germ theory. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Japanese Catarrh Cure

Cures Catarrh after all else has Failed.

It is remarkable how many times Japanese Catarrh Cure completely cures catarrh after all other treatment was a failure. We have on record hundreds of testimonials from prominent people, telling us of their experience with specialists, tablets, tonics and blood purifiers. They tried everything they ever heard of—spent hundreds of dollars in a vain effort to get relief. But it was not until Japanese Catarrh Cure was used, that they began to mend. Let this experience guide you.

"I had been a great sufferer from Catarrh for over fifteen years, during which time I tried a score of doctors and every remedy I thought would relieve me, but the result was only temporary. About a year ago, I used six boxes of Japanese Catarrh Cure, and since completing this treatment, have been entirely free of catarrh. I can recommend it with every confidence."

Togo's Tale of War With Russia

Jap Admiral Recounts History of the Naval Struggle In Far Eastern Waters.

"Gradually Broke the Russians Strength" and "Circumscribed Freedom."

Recent mail advices from Japan include the historic report of Admiral Togo of the naval actions of the war, recently presented the Japanese Emperor. It reads: Since early in February of last year the combined fleet in obedience to the Imperial commands went out to battle, a year and a half has passed, and in the combats on sea and on shore the Imperial forces never once failed to obtain the victory. Peace has now been restored, and we, Your Majesty's subjects, having concluded our service, have the honour of returning in triumph under the Imperial Flag. We are always profoundly sensible that these results are due to Your Majesty's virtues.

When first the Combined Fleet opened the combat, the plan of procedure, as directed by Your Majesty with the regard to the condition of the army and navy to the objects of the war, was to shut the enemy into the Port Arthur region and deprive him of any opportunity to proceed to the fortified port of Vladivostock. Thus attacking him forthwith at Port Arthur and Chemulpo and engaging thereafter in several offensive actions, we gradually broke his strength, and by repeated endeavours to blockade him in port as well as by the use of floating mines, we sought to circumscribe his sphere of freedom. A squadron was also kept constantly in the Korean Channel to obstruct their passage, and while watching the enemy in Vladivistock, to form at the same time the second line of Port Arthur's investment. During the first period of the war the enemy, taking advantage of the natural situation, steadily adopted a policy of defence, and in repeated assaults our forces were unable to assure success. But in the middle of August his fleet emerged from Port Arthur and attempted to escape to Vladivostock, the result being a battle in the Yellow Sea and off Ulsan. Unexpectedly his strategy was broken and the purpose of our plan was in the main achieved. Thereafter the fight on land progressed, and the untiring attacks of the army against the rear of the fortress concerted with the blockade in front resulted in the annihilation of the main part of the enemy's fleet at the foot of the stronghold. Up to this time the operations had been necessarily of a gradual nature, achieving consecutedly small results, and thus the attacks had extended over nearly ten months. That was the period involving the heaviest casualties among loyal officers and men who had devoted heart and hand to the work, and had toiled with all their ability and all their courage, and involving also no small loss of ships. But the issue of the fight was now for the first time decided, and an earnest was given of the victory subsequently won in the Sea of Japan.

The opening of the new year saw the combat enter its second phase. Our squadron prepared themselves to meet the enemy's second fleet, and at the same time undertook the blockade of the Russian maritime province, thus cutting off the enemy's source of military supplies. A squadron was also despatched to the South Seas to threaten his line of communications. There resulted the capture of over thirty steamers in the straits of Tsushima, Tsugaru, Soya and Kunajiri. In early summer, namely the month of May, the enemy's second fleet made its appearance in our neighboring seas, and we adopted a waiting policy, assembling our ships in the Korean channel and holding ourselves ready to strike. Thereafter by the help of Heaven the valiant efforts of our officers and men achieved success, and a battle in the Sea of Japan swept the enemy's shadow off the sea bringing that stage of the war to an end.

Thus in name and in reality the command of the Sea of Japan fell to Japan. The war entered its third phase and our duties became much lighter. Cooperating with the army in the attack on Saghalien, we performed our share of the duty, losing scarcely a man. We also made armed descents upon the enemy in the direction of North Korea, continued the blockade of his ports and preserved its efficiency until the end of the war.

Thus it may be said in sum that during the first period of the war the combined fleet determined the relative strength of the combatants; during the second period it achieved victory, and during the third period it gathered the results. There were degrees of urgency and of difficulty, but on the whole the war proceeded in regular sequence of offensive movements, until the issue today witnessed was achieved. The ships have now assembled in Tokyo Bay to celebrate the triumph. They number over 170. Some vessels were lost, but considering the additions made to our navy in the form of captures from the enemy, our force today is not inferior to what it was on the eve of the war, which fact Your Majesty's servants regard as a great honour. I rejoice exceedingly that in consequence of the fine results achieved by the army of Manchuria and Korea and the no small assistance we derived from its strength, in consequence of the excellent arrangements of the various naval officers, their activity and the aid rendered by all government departments, the sea fight proceeded satisfactorily.

With the utmost reverence I present this account of the course of the war and have the honour to report the outcome of the responsibilities imposed on me by the Imperial command.

(Signed) TOGO HEIHACHIRO.

October 22nd, 1905.

His Majesty was pleased to give the following rescript to the admiral:—

"It is universally recognized at home and abroad that the combined fleet, under your command, well overcame all difficulties and performed unprecedented deeds.

"Hearing from you the direct recital of the course of the war, our admiration for the valour and energy of our officers and men is deepened. Be careful of your well being."

When life's autumn comes, women, worn out by the burdens of motherhood, yet shrink from that second "change of life" which will banish these burdens forever. They fear a change in form, in feature, in personal attractiveness. Such fears are largely warranted by the effects which this change produces in many women. But no woman need let these fears fret her.

Those who have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription do not suffer from the change of life either in face, form or feelings as do other women. This fact is due to the intimate connection of the general health with the health of the organs peculiarly feminine. By preserving the health of these organs, and relieving the system from the debilitating drains, ulcers and inflammations which sap its health, "Favorite Prescription" paves the way for this natural change to come in Nature's way, without the loss of capacity to please others or personal inability to enjoy life.

"Your 'Favorite Prescription' brought me safely through that difficult period, called 'change of life,'" writes Mrs. Mary Ensminger, of 344 E. Ankeny St., Portland, Oregon. "This change made a very unpleasant disturbance through my entire system. I had hot and cold flashes, sick headaches, became excited, flustrated, nervous and irritable. My appetite was fitful and for days I was unable to eat a fair meal. My aunt recommended me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it made a great change for the better. Within two weeks the unpleasant feelings had disappeared. I have a husband and eight children so have the care of a large family but was able to attend to my household duties without any difficulty and passed the period without any more trouble. I can recommend your 'Favorite Prescription' as a grand medicine for women."

You may be willing that somebody else shall say that their baby is "just as good" as yours, but you don't want that baby substituted for yours. Let dealers say what they like about other medicines being "just as good" but don't let them substitute anything for "Favorite Prescription." It is absolutely unequaled.

LECTURE COURSE.

Rev. H. H. Gowen Outlines His Plans For Series of Discourses Here.

Rev. H. H. Gowen has sent the following communication touching his proposed lecture course to be given in Victoria:

"I have come to the conclusion that it will be wise for me to carry out my plan of getting up one 'set' of new lectures, to follow much the plan I sketched when last in Victoria. They could stand somewhat as follows:

"The Spiritual Teaching and Tendencies in English Poetry."

"Lecture 1—'Beowulf and Cadmon. The Singers of the Dawn. The Chroniclers.'

"Lecture 2—Geoffrey Chaucer and His Times. The Episode. Italian Novella.

"Lecture 3—Falstaff. A Study in the English Renaissance. Humanism.

"Lecture 4—The Lake Poets. Back to Nature.

"Lecture 5—The Spirit of Victorian Poetry.

"Lecture 6—Living Poets and Tendencies in poetry.

"I should like to give these lectures, if possible, the six consecutive Wednesdays before Lent."

All those interested in and desirous of taking this course of lectures are asked to communicate their assent to Mrs. Hasell, Royal Jubilee Hospital, not later than December 1.

Cariboo Pioneer.—James Innes, of Barkerville, Cariboo, is re-visiting the coast cities. Mr. Innes located in Barkerville in 1868, and with the exception of an occasional visit to the coast has mined in that vicinity for forty years. He says that the water drought had been a serious handicap to mine owners this season. The harvest of gold would have been large had it not been for this reverse. He and his associates own two drifting propositions, the Stout Gulch mine and the Forest Flower mine. Both are good properties, and in years when the water supply is plentiful the returns are good. The shaft of one of the properties is down one hundred and five feet, and the other nearly one hundred feet in pay dirt, in which there is scarcely any clay, the gravel being very easily worked.

IS BISHOP OF THE SELKIRK DIOCESE

White Horse Clergyman Chosen to Preside Over the Largest District In World.

At the meeting of the standing committee for the election of bishops of the ecclesiastical province of Ruperts Lands this morning at St. Johns cathedral, Isaac O. Stringer of Whitehorse, Yukon Territory, was elected bishop for the diocese of Selkirk, the largest diocese in the world, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Bishop Bompas, says the Winnipeg Telegram. The following members of the committee were present when the choice was made: The Most Rev. the Metropolitan of Ruperts Land, the Right Rev. Bishops of Calgary, Saskatchewan and Keewatin, the Ven. Archdeacon Fortin, the Ven. Archdeacon Tims of Calgary, the Very Rev. Dean Coombes, the Ven. Archdeacon Phair, the Rev. W. A. Burman and J. A. Machray, the last three named representing the diocese of Selkirk. In addition to the above mentioned, the following are members of the committee: The Very Rev. Dean Sargent, the Ven. Archdeacon Scott, the Ven. Archdeacon Page, the Rev. E. Matheson, the Rev R. A. Robinson, the Rev. W. McMillan, Sheriff Inkster, James McKay, Mr. Justice Wetmore, A. W. R. Markley, W. L. Bernard, F. W. Godsal, H. A. Adams, G. R. Coldwell, K. C., H. W. Gardner and W R. Mulock, K. C.

Particularly Fitted for Position

The newly appointed Bishop of Selkirk, according to the statements of prominent clergymen, is particularly fitted to occupy the position for which he has been chosen. He was born in Eastern Ontario about 44 years ago, and in 1892 took the degree of bachelor of arts at the University of Toronto, at the same time graduating in divinity at Wycliffe College in that city. Shortly after obtaining his degrees he engaged in missionary work, taking up his station at the Peel River mission in Mackenzie Territory. Later on he went to Herschel Island, in the Arctic circle, the farthest north point at which a white man can exist for any length of time, where he worked among the Eskimos.

For ten years he labored there, but at last he was forced to leave on account of the strain to which his eyes were subjected by the peculiar climatic conditions which obtain in the Arctic circle. He was next stationed at Whitehorse, where he went three years ago.

Constantly Ask for Stringer

The new bishop is a man of splendid physique and has been popular wherever he has engaged in missionary work, gaining both the love and admiration of the peoples among whom he has labored. Returning missionaries from the far north state that Indians and Eskimos always ask for Stringer and insist on knowing when he is coming back to them. In 1894 Mr. Stringer married, and since that time his wife has been his companion in all his work.

It is likely that the bishop will continue to reside at Whitehorse, but in the event of a change in residence he will probably live at Dawson City. Bishop Bompas, the former Bishop of Selkirk, had his residence at Carcross, a short distance south of Whitehorse.

AN ALCOHOL REVELATION.

When the Anti-Canteen League succeeded in forcing its restricted and narrow views upon Congress, and so upon the army, the result was regarded as a triumph for prohibition. Like many similar abuses of temporary power, it has proved precisely the reverse. Senator Gallagher and his league have gone to great extremes, and, fortunately for the cause of temperance, have invited the reaction from which sane legislation may now be expected.

How general this reaction has become is evidenced by the fact that movements for redress have appeared in three distinct quarters.

First—It is apparent that the army is emphatically for the canteen. There is no reason to assume that the army officers are in any sense prejudiced upon this subject. The Temperance League charges that the position of army officers finds its explanation in the fact that these officers are themselves drinkers is unworthy, and, of course, untrue. Army officers have every inducement not to run counter to the expressed policy of Congress, and they have every reason to urge a policy which will increase their own control and influence over the men. It is enlightening that in urging this policy the commanders do not stand alone. They are supported by the army surgeons, and certainly no one will contend that the opinion of these surgeons is also to be ascribed to their disposition to indulge in alcoholic beverages, and to extend equal facilities for such indulgence to the rank and file. Such a contention is in itself unreasonable, and must necessarily result in resentment and correction.

Second—At the same time it appears that the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in Washington has decided that patent medicines which contain alcohol and which are sold as beverages must pay the usual revenue tax. There is, of course, no connection between the two movements, beyond the fact that they argue for a widespread interest and agitation upon a subject which has been clouded by prejudice and hypocrisy. It is remarkable that legitimate liquor interests permitted themselves to be burdened with so disproportionate a responsibility for the baneful consequences of the use and abuse of alcohol. But if those interests have managed their own affairs poorly, the public, which is entitled to first consideration always, is to be congratulated that light is promised through this official and entirely independent source. It is not unlikely that there will be some rattling of dry bones when it is discovered in how large a degree the temperance declaimers have been braced in their supreme efforts by the liberal, though, perhaps, unconscious use of alcohol in disguise. Of course the ruling of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue will reach only a comparatively small number of alcoholic products. By far the greater number of them will still, in the guise of innocent patent medicines, escape the penalties of the revenue collector. This is due to the technicalities of the law, which restrict the collector to products avowedly sold as beverage, and in this way, of course, the ordinary druggist's supply of bracers may escape. The significance lies in the fact that the principle is established, the line will be drawn, the reason for temporary escape will be understood and the inquiry is fairly started.

Third—This leads directly to a consideration of the last and most important movement, which is the unofficial investigation into the composition of so-called medicines which are served to the general public. The manner in which as fearless a journal as Collier's Weekly has entered upon this investigation is proof that there will be no turning back short of the truth. It is a safe prediction that the life insurance disclosures are to the patent medicine revelations like a starved snipe to an over-fed goose. Popular surprise and indignation are only beginning to discern the naked truth. It will be found that the Temperance League as a self-constituted public guardian is lamentably incompetent because it has been misled by the well-worn cry of "Stop thief!" It will be shown that the loudest temperance shouters among the newspapers are paid and engaged to throttle every attack upon those who sell alcohol under false pretense, in quantities and of qualities that raises the question how a race could survive its common use. Some of the have sought to make their beverages hair-brained attacks upon those who healthful and honest may now be ascribed to the inroads which indiscriminate use of certain patented beverages must necessarily have made upon body and brain. The people will learn something of the distinction between an honest and legitimate use of alcohol and its flagrantly criminal sale to the ignorant and the vicious.

Finally, some of the ignominy which has been unjustly visited upon a class of legitimate business men who produce and sell what they advertise, will at last fall to those who really deserve it; when the advertising druggist, and the concocter of dangerous medicines will be brought within reasonable control and will be asked to tell the truth about their so-far irresponsible trade.

MARK TWAIN REMINISCENT.

John Hay's Pike County Ballads—An Interview With Horace Greeley.

Harper's Weekly.

In hos article in the "North American Review" Mr. Howwells expresses uncertainly in a matter concerning the Ballads in the following remark:

"It was contemporaneously supposed that the Pike County Ballads were inspired or provoked by the Pike County Balladry of Bret. Harte and they were first accepted as imitations or parodies I believe they were actually written earlier, but if they were written later," etc.

They were not written later, they were written (and printed in newspapers earlier. Mr. Hay told me this himself—in 1870 or 71, I should say, I believe—indeed I am quite sure—that he added that the newspapers referd to were obscure Western backwoods journals, and the ballads were not widely copied. Also, he said this: That by and by, when Harte's ballads began to sweep the country the noise woke his (Hay's buried waifs and they rose and walked. I think that the detain is interesting now. It compels one to realize to oneself the difficult fact that there was a time when another person could advertise John Hay into notice better than he could do himself. Hay made mention of current motion that he was an imitator; he did not enlarge upon it, but he was not better pleased by it than you or I would be.

He was aware that I had been a Mississippi pilot, and he asked me if he had made any technical errors in the "Prarie Belle" ballad, and said he wanted to correct them if they existed. There was one slight one, in could not have been corrected without dividing the heroism between two persons, and that would have spoiled the poem; so Hay left it as it was.

"It is true that in later life he wished people would forget the ballads" for he said the equivalent of that to a friend of mine before 1880; but at the time of which I have been speaking they had not yet become an inconvenience to him by obstructing his road to a graver frame. It was another case of "Heathen Chinee." When Harte editing the "Overland," and moving gradually and confidently along toward a coveted place in high-grade literature an accident happened one day which blocked his progress for a time. The office boy brought an urgent call for "copy" to fill a vacancy on the eve of going to press, and Harte, for lack of anything more to hos taste fished his "Heathen Chinee" ballad out of the waste basket where he had thrown it, and gave it to the boy. Harte's reputation had been local before; in a single day the Heathen Chinee made it universal. Then the Eastern world called for more Chinee, and was frantic to get it. Harte tried to appease it with higher literature, and got only censure in return, and reminders that he was wasting his time upon a sort of work which was out of his line and above his ability. He told me these things long afterward, and still showed a bitter and histile feeling against that ballad, because it had stopped his lofty march when he was making such good progress, and had remained stubbornly in his road so long that he had begun to fear that he would never get a start again. Then relief and rescue came at last, and the "Luck of Roaring Camp" blasted the Heathen Chinee out of the way and opened the road.

I always recall that talk with Hay with pleasure, not only for its own sake, but because it was incidentally the occasion of my getting acquainted with Horace Greely, a man whom I greatly admired and loved to see, and whose memory I still revere. It was difficult to get an interview with him, for he was a busy man, he was irascible, and he had an aversion to strangers; but I not only had the good fortune to meet him, but also had the great privilege of hearing him talk. The Tribune was in its early home at that time, and Hay was leader writer on its staff. I had an appointment with him, and went there to look him up. I did not know my way, and entered Mr. Greely's room by mistake. I recognized his back and stood mute and rejoicing. After a little, he swung slowly around in his chair, with his head slightly tilted backward and the great moon's of his spectacles glaring with intercepted light; after about a year—though it may have been less, perhaps—he arranged his firm mouth with care and said with virile interest:

"Well? What the hell do you want?"

So I think it must have been in 1870 or 71 that I had the tal kwith Hay about the ballads, because both he and Mr. Greely were doing editorial duty on the Tribune in those years.

A DISCOURSE ON BUTTER.

The Oldest, the Sweetest and the Most Nutritious of Food Products.

Home Journal de Rouen in Creamery Journal, London.

The word butter (buttrum) comes, according to Charles Toubin, from the Sanscrit but (to beat) and ura (milk). This precious substance consists in an agglomeration of the fatty globules extracted from the milk where they are in the state of emulsion through the churning optrations. Cow butter is the only really good one. It is the oily and rich, of a delicate and special odor, and of a pure, sweet, and pleasant taste which reminds one of the nut tree. Butter, of which Paris uses more than one and a quarter million pounds worth annually is an article of food the use of which goes back to the remotest antiquity. It is true that the Romans only used it as an exteraal remedy unquentum, but the Hindoos and Jews surfeited with it, andAOIN and Jews were surfeited with in and the savages of the north seem from all times to have made it the basis of their foods. The oldest Iceland poem relates how the bard Skidi dreamt one night that he asked in marriage Friggia, the goddess of Love, and that the god Odieu gave him as a wedding present a case full of butter.

The best butter is made in the provinces of Normandy and Brittany, but the mountains of the east also produce a white butter much appreciated by connoisseurs. Flanders, Holland, and England produce exquisite soft butter, because the agricultural population of these beautiful countries take great care not to feed their cows with anything which may gige a bed taste to the milk. Furthermore, they possess in the highest degree that quality of cleanliness in every particular which is so indispensable to all farming industries, of whatever kind.

The most delicate butter is made with fine cream which separates spontaneously from the standing milk. When the butter is beaten, all the buttermilk must then be removed—that is to say, the particles of whey and casein in which cause in to go rancid and spoil the taste. The best way of doing this is to cut the butter into thin strips and kneading i for some time with rollers and beaters. May is the most favorable month for butter manufacture. Bunner is a produce of the north, as the low temperature at which it melts makes its use diedlult to the southern races, and their stomachs also have very little desire for fatty substances.

Butter becomes rancid very quickly, and bitter strong butter) owing to the emission of butyric acid, produced by its putrid fermentation. Butter is preserved either by melting it it the water bath or by salting it with from one to two per cent of dry salt.

It is a very nourishing food, and more easy to digest than animal fats, on account of the aromatic elements it contains. Emollient and laxative, it, on account of the quantity of carbon which it contains, assists the breathing functions, and is productive of animal heat. With bread and salt it supplies an incomparable hors d'aeuvre, and is one of the most wholesome of foods.

The fundamental support of cooking—a condiment of any number of dishes which it would be difficult to make without it—it gives to our foods a flavor and special digestibility. It facilitates the preparation of soups, meats, fish, vegetables, etc.; the fresher it is the better it is digested. It is the very best food for weak, debilated, and thin people, consumptive, diabetic and nervous people, and those suffering from lung complaints.

Colds That Last All Winter Long

Many a cold that begins this month will last all winter. Some of them will develop into bronchitis, consumption, pneumonia.

Will you allow yourself to become a victim of circumstances, or will you fight the enemies of health?

From any dealer in medicines you can obtain Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine at 25 cents a bottle, and there is no preparation known to science that is so certain to prevent and cure coughs, colds and serious diseases of throat and lungs.

From baby's croup to grandfather's asthma—this great medicine brings prompt relief to every form of cold weather ailment. Even chronic bronchitis an obdstinate whooping cough yield to its soothing and healing powers.

On every bottle you will find the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author. The imitations are like the genuine in name only, not in curative qualities.

BAZAAR CLOSED.

The annual bazaar under the auspices of the ladies of the St. Andrews (R. C.) cathedral was brought to a conclusion last evening b yan auction sale conducted by Messrs. Eaton & Co. The bidding was very brisk, and good prices were realized. There was a keen competition between those in charge of the different booths as to which would clear the largest profits. The honor went to table No. 1.

During the evening Mrs. Hickey was presented with a very handsome bouquet of choice carnations as a mark of appreciation for her valuable services.

The total receipts for the bazaar amounted to close on $1,000, which is expected to go a long way towards clearing the debt on the new church in Victoria West.

The prizes drawn for last evening were as follows, together with the names of the winners: Fancy tray, Mrs. Langton; ton of coal, Mr. Cook; chenille cover, Miss Beckingham; "automobile ride," Mr. Cook; table cover, George D. Forrest; jardiniere and stand, M. Harris; cushion, Phil Ross; Japanese picture, E. McDonald; oak panel, Miss Kerg; St. Ann's cushion, Archbishop Orth; oil painting, Mrs. Lowe; gold chain, S. Perdue; photo of Archbishop Orth, J. Hart; picture and frame, Mrs. McPhillips; jardiniere and table, A. C. Albany; poodle dog, Winnie Byron; burnt tray, Mrs. Radiger; cord of wood, A. Madden; two statues, Father Fisser; cut-glass water pitcher, Mrs. Whelan; pink doll, C. Godfrey; gold locket, S. A. Bantly; cushion, S. Perdue; fancy lamp, Mr. Godfrey.

Sale of Work.—The women's auxiliary of the Metropolitan Methodist church will hold their annual sale of work at the residence of Mrs. Goodacre, 74 Pandora street, tomorrow afternoon and evening. The sale will commence at 3 o'clock, and a large number of useful and ornamental articles will be disposed of. The candy stall will be under the superintendence of the young ladies of the church. Refreshments will be served during the afternoon, and in the evening an entertainment will be given, for which a very fine programme has been prepared.

Rush Birdcage Walk Extension

City Council Decides to Hurry the Important James Bay Improvements.

No Remedy for Disfranchisement of Soldiers Until Legislature Meets.

At the regular meeting of the city council last evening it was decided to proceed immediately with the extension of Birdcage Walk. The occupants of the lands which will be affected will require to vacate the premises by November 30. The question of the disfranchisement of the members of the Fifth regiment was also discussed and the report of the city solicitor will be referred to the legislative committee with a request that the act be altered at the next session of parliament.

The following communications were dealt with:

Frank M. Grant drew attention to the condition of Chestnut avenue and requested that it be attended to. Referred to the engineer for report.

Hawkins & Hayward, electricians, complained of an injustice in the electric light bylaws. Referred to the streets, sewers and bridges committee and city electricians.

H. T. Cole requested that a sidewalk be laid on Dallas road, near San Juan avenue. Referred to the city engineer with power to act.

Edward North complained that the cabins in the rear of his residence had not yet been connected with the sewer. Received and filed.

The water commissioner recommended that tenders be called for the supply of lead pipe, valves and brass goods. Received and the recommendation acted on.

H. H. Sewall and a number of others requested that the sidewalk on Williams street be continued, as at present the street is in a very bad condition. Referred to the engineer with power to act.

Wm. Emery et al. requested that the city obtain the right of way from North Pembroke street to the Jubilee hospital.

Ald. Fullerton thought that the work was a very necessary one and that it should be done. At the present time the city is repairing the street and the improvement could be done at the same time. Referred to the city engineer and assessor for report.

Thomas & Grant requested information as to why only one firm in the city were able to supply the police with clothing. They considered it was a waste of time submitting samples. Received and filed.

The Anglican Synod requested that the surface drain being laid on Moss street be contianed to Fairfield road, for which they were willing to pay at an estimated cost of between $700 and $800, the work to be done under the supervision of the city engineer. The city engineer was instructed to carry out the work under those conditions.

Tenders for the printing of voters' lists were received from the Colonist Printing & Publishing Company, $2.55 per page; Victoria Printing & Publishing Company, $1.59; T. R. Cusack, $1.45 per page. The contract was let to T. R. Cusack and the mayor instructed to attach the seal of the corporation.

The finance committee presented accounts to the amount of $3,856, which were received and ordered paid. The same committee also presented accounts of $7,687 out of the Birdcage Walk improvement and assessment by-law and $1,713 out of the electric light by-law, all of which were received and ordered paid.

On motion of Ald. Hanna, seconded by Ald. Stewart, leave was granted to introduce a by-law to establish a branch of the city pound in Victoria West.

It was moved by Ald. Oddy, seconded by Ald. Fell, that the work of the extension of Birdcage Walk be forthwith proceeded with, and that the engineer do enter upon the lands expropriated by by-law No. 441 and do require vacant possession of the same by the 30th day of November, 1905; and further, that there be appropriated and advanced out of the general funds of the city such sums as may be necessary to make tender of and pay any compensation to persons claiming such under said by-law. The motion was carried.

The streets naming by-law, legal advisers by-law and local improvement by-law were reconsidered and finally passed.

The committee of the Home for the Aged and Infirm recommended the admission of W. H. Howarth to the institution. Received and adopted.

The report of the city solicitor re the disfranchisement of the members of the Fifth regiment was as follows:

To His Worship the Mayor and Board of Aldermen, Victoria, B. C.:

Gentlemen—Referring to the question as to the effect of the alterations made in the Municipal Elections Act by the act of last session, with respect to the members of the Fifth Regiment and male residents over fifty years of age, which was referred to the city barrister and myself to advise thereon, I beg to say that I have read and concur in the opinion furnished by the city barrister; the effect of the Municipal Elections Act Amendment Act, 1905, being to require all persons, without exception, claiming to vote as "householders," the direct payment to the municipality of rates, taxes and fees of not less than two dollars, during the current year.

I may point out that, although the act requires this direct payment of $2 from "householders," and to that extent limits the rights of the persons in question, it extends the privilege of all "householders" by leaving out of the definition of a householder the words "and paying therefor a rental or rent value of not less than sixty dollars per annum," with the result that every person, a British subject and of the full age of twenty-one years, who was residing within the municipality on the 1st day of January last, and has continuously resided in the municipality since that day, and pays directly to the municipality $2 during the current year for some municipal rates, taxes, rentals, assessment or license fee (not chargeable on land), will be entitled to vote as a householder at the next election, upon entering on or before the 1st day of December next, with the assessor, his or her name as a voter, and making and delivering to the assessor, or clerk of the municipal council, at the same time a statutory declaration in the form given by the act of 1905. The payment of water rates to the extent of $2 is a sufficient payment under the act.

C. DUBOIS MASON,
City Solicitor.

It was moved by Ald. Hall that the report be received and a copy sent to the sergeants of the Fifth regiment.

Ald. Fullerton thought that the real issue had been overlooked. The members of the regiment had requested that the council petition the lieutenant-governor-in-council to have the act withdrawn or withheld for this year, but by the motion this was not being done.

Ald. Oddy moved that the report be received and that a copy be sent to the sergeants of the Fifth regiment and that they be informed that the council is instructing the legislative committee to have the act altered at the next session.

Ald. Hanna could not see how it could be altered for this year. All they could do was to recommend that it be altered.

Ald. Stewart was sorry that the soldiers had been disfranchised, but all they could do was to have it altered at the next session of parliament.

Ald. Oddy's motion was carried and the meeting adjourned.

CROUP ABSOLUTELY CURED.

"There is no remedy in my opinion that can act more promptly than Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It cured my son of croup, absolutely, in one night. We gave him a dose when he was black in the face with choking. It gave him instant relief and cure."—Mr. Wm. McCee, 49 Wright Ave., Toronto, Ont.

DISCUSS FREIGHT RATES.

Alleged New Railways Disturb Conditions of Kootenay Trade.

Freight rates are again under discussion by the wholesalers of Nelson, says the News of that city. This time no direct antagonism to any railway company is involved, at least for the present.

Nelson's claims to be regarded and treated as a wholesale centre have hitherto been acquiesced in by the C. P. R. Company and apparently approved by the Dominion railway commission, as no objection has been made.

The number of branch railways and extensions of other branches, now being built, or to be built, is gradually effecting a change in the commercial relations of Nelson with other towns that should, in the opinion of Nelson's wholesale dealers be subsidiary to this city.

The connection of East Kootenay and Boundary towns with the American cities and with the American railways by the Canadian Pacific and Great Northern companies' branches, is creating a new condition for Nelson wholesalers.

A special meeting of the wholesalers' association was held in the board of trade rooms yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Although several members are absent from the city, and the others got only two hours' notice, more than a dozen attended.

F. Starkey, president, briefly stated the object of the meeting. He said that the position of Nelson as a wholesale point was seriously endangered by new railway connections established in the district. He recommended that the executive committee be instructed to confer with the headsl of the freight departments of the C. P. R. and G. N. R. companies. He recommended that no other resolutions be passed at present.

After a long discussion the president's recommendations were adopted. Future action will depend upon the replies received from the railway companies.

MARRIED AT SYDNEY.

Daughter of Capt. J. W. Peppett Weds Randolph Bolling.

A wedding in which many Victorians will be interested took place recently at North Sydney, C. B., where Miss Suzie Peppett, daughter of Captain J. W. Peppett, the well known sealing man, owner of the schooners Umbrina and Beatrice L. Corkum, now in Victoria, arranging for the next cruise of his schooner, was married at St. John's Anglican church, to Mr. Randolph Bolling of Richmond, Virginia. The Daily Post of Sydney, C. B., says: "The interior of the church was beautifully decorated. The bride, in the absence of her father, was given away by her brother Claude, and was magnificently gowned in a creation of ivory white duchesse satin, trimmed with festoons of mechlin, with a wedding veil and wreath of orange blossoms, and carrying a shower bouquet of bridal roses. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Etta Peppett, who looked handsome in pale blue messeline silk over pale blue taffeta, with black pan velvet picture hat, and held a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The groom was supported by Mr. T. D. A. Purves. The tiny flower girls, Miss Ruth Shatford, daughter of the rector, and Miss Marjorie Earle, daughter of Mr. Stanley Earle, looked sweet in dresses of pink silk and poke bonnets. Both the little ones carried bouquets of pink and white carnations. Mrs. Peppett, mother of the bride, wore grey silk eolian over taffeta heliotrope, with heliotrope velvet picture hat. The marriage ceremony was performed by the rector, Rev. Allan P. Shatford, assisted by Rev. C. W. Vernon.

"The groom's present to the bride was a unique pearl brooch and pendant; to the bridesmaid, a pearl crescent, while the favors to the flower girls were pearl and gold safety pins.

"Over 500 invitations were issued, many of which were accepted. Many handsome and costly gifts were received by the happy couple from their many acquaintances.

"After the wedding ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Peppett street.

"Mr. and Mrs. Bolling will leave tonight for Sydney, where they will remain until tomorrow, proceeding from there on a tour of the Maritime provinces. On returning they will reside on Summer street."

Sunday School Propaganda.—On Saturday next, under the auspices of the Victoria branch of the International Sunday School association, a house to house visitation for the purpose of taking a special canvas will be made. Cards will be distributed requesting that the desired information be tabulated.

Costs in Re Collins.—A despatch from Sacramento says Detective Thos. Gibson has filed a bill for $13,000, the expense of the extradition of George D. Collins, accused of perjury, from Victoria. The accused lawyer is still fighting against conviction for perjury.

L'Alliance Francaise.—The regular meeting of L'Alliance Francaise, held in the Balmoral Hotel last evening, was exceptionally well attended, and all present took a decided interest in the proceedings. During the evening Madame Kaperezprom delighted the large audience with a very fine reading entitled "La Verilee," by Francois Coppe.

Presbyterian Union.—A meeting of the Presbyterian Union of the city, was held last night in the First Presbyterian church. A very instructive and suggestive paper was read by Mr. Messon, superintendent of First Presbyterian church sabbath school on the difficulties and problems that face the church. A long discussion followed in which various ministers and members took part and it was agreed to adjourn the discussion till the next meeting. It was also agreed to hold a united social gathering of all the Presbyterian churches in the city on December 18th. Members of the various Presbyterian churches are kindly asked to keep that date free for this gathering. Further notice of this meeting will be given.

Special Sitting Supreme Court.—A. H. MacNeill, K. C., of Rosland, R. S. Lennie and W. A. Macdonald, K. C., of Nelson arrived last night from the interior and are registered at the Driard Hotel. The legal trio are here to take part in an appeal from the judgment of Mr. Justice Irving in the case of the West Kootenay Power & Light Company vs. the city of Nelson, who granted an injunction restraining the defendants from depositing rock in the Kootenay river to the damage of the plaintiff company. The appeal will be heard tomorrow before a special sitting of the supreme court. E. V. Bodwell, K. C., is associated with Mr. Macdonald, K. C., in looking after the interests of the city of Nelson and Mr. MacNeill, K. C., of Rossland, and R. S. Lennie of Nelson are plaintiffs' counsel.

THE DRUG MERGER.

Chemical Factory to Be Established—Retailers Not to Be Oppressed.

The National Drug and Chemical Company received its charter from the Dominion government last Friday.

The plans of the new company include the establishment of large chemical factories and pharmaceutical laboratories throughout Canada. It is stated that at present 90 per cent. of the chemicals sold in Canada are imported, although facilities and advantages for their manufacture are as good in Canada as elsewhere. It will be the policy of the new company to manufacture for its own use everything required, as far as possible.

It is stated that there is no intention of oppressing the retail traders who have not joined the new company. On the contrary, it is anticipated that the various economies in manufacture and distribution which will be effected will enable the company to give a vastly better service to the retail trade.

The nineteen houses included in the amalgamation become branches of the National Drug and Chemical Company, with headquarters in Montreal, but still under local management.

Municipal Association.—A meeting of the Fernwood Municipal association will be held tomorrow night, commencing at 8 o'clock, at Oddfellow's hall, Spring Ridge, for the discussion of municipal matters appertaining to Spring Ridge.

Taste WINDSOR TABLE SALT. Does not "bite"—is not bitter. It is pure salt and all salt. Will not cake.
